NO MONEY FOR MEAL, WINS $56,000 IN IRISH

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 60-year-old winner of $56,000 in the Irish Sweepstake did not have enough money today to buy breakfast.
"I was going to see if I could get credit for breakfast," said Harry Puff when told his horse, Merryman II, was second in the Grand National Steeplechase run at Aintree, Eng.
Mr. Puff, who has been on social assistance for nine months, said he will take a "leisurely trip around the world" with his winnings. He said he had to quit his job as a CNR fireman in 1955 when his eyes started to go. Since then he had had odd jobs.

Animals Aboard Soviet Spaceship

(Times News Services)

Moscow radio said "preliminary" investigation on the landed space ship-satellite have shown that the condition of the experimental animal is normal.
Moscow radio said the main aim of the launching was to improve designs aimed at insuring "man's vital functions during flights in space and the return to earth."
The broadcast reported that the launching of the new spaceship had produced a "great deal of valuable data."

Canadians shared an estimated $2,000,000 today as Irish hospital sweepstakes ticket holders in the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, England.
Five of them won $138,500 each as holders on the winner, Nicolaus Silver.

Only one Victorian, "Pay Day" with ticket RPQ 03051, had a starter in the race and his entry, Floater, fell early and did not finish. Two other Victorians had non-starters, and will win $1,100 each. Three of eight Up-Island ticket holders drew starters, but their horses failed to place.

Two of the big winners are from western Canada—Peter Trueman of White Rock, B.C., and Mrs. Catharine Porter of Gleichen, Alta. Two others are from the Toronto area.

Mr. Trueman, 48-year-old millhand, described his jackpot as a miracle. The father of five children, ranging from five to 25 years old, used the nom de plume "Dag." He said he was too overcome to discuss spending plans.

Mrs. Porter used the nom de plume "Macushla." She said she had been buying sweeps tickets "about four years" but this time her mother had made the purchase. Gleichen is about 50 miles southeast of Calgary.

The fifth, Thema McCallum, is serving with the Canadian armed forces in Europe. Eight others won $55,400 on the favorite, Merryman II, which placed second. They include Mrs. Jutta Tambré and Donald Ellis of the Toronto area; Paul Arnold, Kitchener, Ont.; Nicole de Giulio, Windsor, Ont.; Mrs. B. C. Stewart, Welwyn, Sask.; Jean Gabriel, Montreal, and John T. Mires of Welland, Ont.

PLEASE CLEAN UP THE THAMES

A Salmon From the Terrace

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons was urged Friday to clean up the Thames so that members bored by the chamber's proceedings can step outside and catch a salmon.
The plea came from Sir Tufton Beamish, an unhappy angler and bird lover who represents the parliamentary district of Lewes. He was arguing in favor of a bill to make Thames-side cities quit dumping raw sewage into the famous stream.

Beamish, a Conservative, recalled that up to the 18th century, "Salmon were so common in the Thames that it was often a condition in the indentures of apprentices in London that they should not be made to dine off this fish more than two or three times a week."
Now, he said sadly, the Thames is empty of salmon and full of noxious substances. As can be verified by stepping out on the House of Commons terrace, which overlooks the river. And the price of salmon which now comes mostly from Scotland, runs around 10 shillings ($1.40) a pound.
With a visionary gleam in his eye, the 44-year-old Beamish said:

"What nicer pastime during a lengthy sitting of the chamber than to go to the terrace and hook a large salmon."

$100,000 GOLD SHIPMENT MISSING

BANGKOK (AP)—A case of gold worth more than $100,000 disappeared on being moved from Bangkok to the Laotian capital of Vientiane, a newspaper reported today. The Bangkok World said five cases of gold were shipped from Amsterdam for Vientiane aboard a KLM Airliner earlier this week. A KLM spokesman here said some gold was missing but "where or when, I don't know."

Closure Try By Bennett In Hot Debate

By FRANK RUTTER and NORMAN CRIBBENS
A full week of night sittings exploded into a fit of temper in the legislature early today when Premier Eric Martin went home ill.

A series of furious rows erupted in the early morning hours after Mr. Martin refused to give MLAs the report on B.C. mental health services prepared by Dr. Mathew Ross of the American Psychiatric Association.

The rowdy six-hour debate ended at 2:25 a.m. when the premier finally bowed to repeated opposition complaints about passing laws so late. The House was adjourned until 2 p.m. today, presumably in the hope that a desperate final attack will clear the way for prorogation late today.

The high points:
● The CCF accused Mr. Martin of trying to hide the APA report as they refused to pass his salary vote in estimates until he gave it to them;
● The premier tried unsuccessfully to invoke closure of debate on the estimates;
● Speaker Hugh Shaetz warned Gordon Dowding (CCF-Burnaby) he would be named—expelled from the House—if he continued to defy the chair;

● Mr. Martin retired when the premier said the debate was threatening his health;
● Debate on the health estimates and the unfinished portions of Bill 42 were adjourned as the CCF was accused of filibustering.

Martin Refuses

It had started as a quiet night after the premier informed Mr. Strachan privately Mr. Martin's health could not stand a rough time.

But Mr. Martin's refusal to table the APA report of Dr. Mathew Ross got the Opposition dander up.

The health minister had said he would table it when his estimates were discussed, but it was not made available.

Mr. Martin said he had only one copy of the APA report and had been absolutely unable to get further copies printed.

"I've never heard such a lame excuse in my life," snorted Arthur Turner (CCF—Vancouver East).

"I'm convinced there must be something in this report you don't want us to see at this session," said Mr. Strachan. "It's most reprehensible."

"If you've got nothing to hide you're going to satisfy

Emergency Meet Set in Key West

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy is to fly south by jet later today to meet with Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain at Key West, Fla. They will discuss "the serious situation in Laos."

He will meet here Monday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The White House announced that Gromyko had requested a meeting with Kennedy to present a message from his government.

Presumably this, too, deals with the inflammatory situation in Laos, the little kingdom in Southeast Asia which is threatened by pro-Communist rebels.

Macmillan arrived Friday night in Trinidad in the British West Indies to start a 19-day tour of the West Indies, the United States and Canada.

FLYING TONIGHT
Kennedy will fly tonight to Palm Beach, Fla., and on to Key West in the morning.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger read this brief announcement on what may well become a meeting of highest significance.

The president and Prime Minister Macmillan have agreed to have a brief meeting tomorrow at the Key West naval base. The prime minister's presence in Trinidad makes a meeting easy to arrange and they have agreed that a discussion between them can be very helpful in the light of the serious situation in Laos and the opening on Monday of the SEATO conference.

"In addition, the president is remaining in close touch with President de Gaulle and has this morning dispatched a personal message to President de Gaulle on the situation in Laos."

The meeting with Macmillan is set for 11 a.m. EST (8 a.m. PST) Sunday. Salinger said the meeting with Gromyko will be at noon Monday at the White House.

Storm Stops Search

LOCKEPORT, N.S. (CP)—One storm riding on the heels of another held up the search today for 17 Lockeport fishermen missing off the south coast of Nova Scotia. Hope that any of the men survived is all but gone.

Reds Keep Pressure In Battle for Roads

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—Leftist forces today maintained pressure against two important highways linking strongholds of the right wing regime in this embattled Southeast Asian kingdom.
Reports reaching Vientiane indicated rightist troops evacuated the southern town of Kam Keut to an attacking leftist force. The rightists dug in to defend the road linking Vientiane and Savannakhet, a southern town on the Thailand border where rightists launched a drive which took this capital late last year.

In the north, right wing forces were reported to have counter-attacked to defend the road running north from Vientiane to the royal city of Luang Prabang.

More Talks In Bangkok

BANGKOK (AP)—Foreign ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization hurried here today for a crisis conference on Laos.

Ready for them is a defence blueprint, drawn up by SEATO military experts who favor the hard U.S. line and want the alliance's fighting power strengthened.

Western military movements in the area were being kept secret.

Radio Moscow today agreed that the situation grows more serious daily in the jungle kingdom. But the Russians remained silent on Western peace proposals put forward by the British.

Soviet Gets Nehru Note

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India sent a new message to the Laotian crisis to Russia following President Kennedy's appeal to Prime Minister Nehru for help to arrange a cease-fire, official sources said today.

U.S. Plane Missing

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. transport plane with eight Americans aboard is missing in Laos, the government announced today.

The plane was assigned to the U.S. air attaché in Laos, but neither he nor Ambassador Winthrop G. Brown was aboard. The plane has been missing for two days.

BENNETT'S PLANS TO FLEMING

'Either B.C. or Ottawa Handle Columbia Alone'

Premier Bennett said Friday the federal government should accept B.C.'s terms for financing the Columbia River power project—or pay the entire $158,000,000 cost itself.

He told federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming that B.C. would finance the entire undertaking provided Ottawa guaranteed power would be available in Vancouver for not more than 4.25 mills per kilowatt hour.

Otherwise, he proposed that the federal government pay the full shot, and provide B.C. with compensation for its residents who are flooded out.

Mr. Bennett reported these offers to the legislature Friday afternoon.

He said he will hold talks with Mr. Fleming all weekend, but he agreed with the federal minister's earlier prediction that no firm agreement on financing the project would be reached now.

Mr. Bennett told the legislature his offers, sent to Mr. Fleming Thursday night, before their first meeting here this morning, were not intended to limit their talks.

This is plan Number One: The federal government to construct three storage dams and transmission lines necessary to carry out terms of the

IN THE LEGISLATURE

In an age when most working hours are regulated, why is it that members of the legislative assembly are expected to labor around the clock according to the whim of the government in power?

Not even doctors and dentists, with their sworn devotion to duty, are expected to go without sleep night after night. Yet this is the price exacted of men and women elected to represent us in this legislature!

Here is their timetable:
5:20 a.m. Wednesday; 4:10 a.m. Thursday; 11:30 p.m. Friday; 2:30 a.m. today.

Who else but MLAs would consent to this kind of regimen? Surely they would appeal to their guilds or unions and compel them to do something about it.

The thought arises that the business of this province has increased so much over the last 20 years that a longer session is needed.

An eight-week session may have been adequate 20 years ago. It is not enough for the amount of legislative business transacted today.

The fact this legislature is sitting this afternoon—a Saturday (if you please)—is proof that its votes and proceedings cannot be contained in the old-fashioned eight-week session.

It could easily be lengthened so that proper consideration be given to the business involved.

Temper flared when Premier Bennett adjourned debate on the salary vote of Health Minister Eric Martin until 8 p.m.

"Why not Monday?" asked Leo Nimick (CCF—Cranbrook).

Said the premier:

"Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday—I am tired of hearing threats about rushing the business of this House."

Earlier, the premier accused the Opposition of prolonging the session with "filibustering."

"We don't want to apply closure but we will if we are provoked."

"That is a threat," answered CCF leader Robert Strachan.

"You are filibustering," the premier said.

"Shame, shame, shame!" cried Mr. Strachan. "Shame, shame, shame!"

"You are wasting the people's money," snorted the premier, referring, apparently, to the cost of keeping a number of senior citizens employed as special assistants in the legislature.

Randolph Harding (CCF—Kaslo-Slocan) was particularly scornful of what the government used to call the Wenner-Gren development in northern British Columbia.

He complained that Premier Bennett went up there with a power saw in one hand, a "suitcase-full" of good wishes in the other, and declared:

"This railway won't stop until it reaches the Yukon boundary."

Mr. Harding said the affairs of the proposed Pacific Northern Railroad are not nearly sufficiently known.

"Ah! those smoke-filled rooms," cried Waldo Skilling, the government member for Victoria.

"Yes, and I do mean smoke-filled rooms," cried Mr. Harding. "There will be plenty of them if this deal goes through."

In the dying days (and nights) of this exhausting session, Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver) observed:

"Since we are keeping night club hours, we might as well do it right and have a bar."

Arthur Turner, the CCF member for Vancouver East, banged his pencil on a glass of water to demand attention to what he called "a lack of temperance" in the proceedings of the legislature in regard to night sittings.

"There is a limit to anyone's physical and mental capacity—no matter how clever they may be."

CLOSURE TRY

everybody," said Randolph Harding (CCF—Kaslo-Slocan).

"We could have been through your estimates by now if you were not so stubborn and foolish."

The CCF made the first attempt to adjourn debate on the estimates. It was defeated 29-19.

Its speakers dived on persistently.

Mr. Dowding said the House should not pass the minister's salary vote until it had seen a copy of the Ross report.

"This Is an Insult"

"I think it is reprehensible... you are asking us to vote blind. It is an insult to this legislature."

Mr. Dowding said one vote in the departmental estimates called for the expenditure of $100,000 to implement recommendations in the Ross psychiatric report.

"Yet," he said, "we don't know what these recommendations are."

Later when Mr. Dowding refused to sit down despite orders from the chair, Speaker Shantz hurried into the chamber to restore peace.

He told Mr. Dowding that repeated defiance of the chair would mean he would be "named"—expelled from the House.

But he would let him off with a warning, Mr. Dowding apologized.

At midnight chairman William Murray (SC—Prince Rupert) cautioned Camille Mather (CCF—Delta) about repetition.

Mr. Bennett called across the floor:

"If this doesn't stop I'll have to enforce closure."

The statement was greeted with cries of derision from the opposition. The premier has always boasted that he never has been forced to employ this device to cut off a debate.

Opposition Leader Strachan rose on a point of order to reiterate the plea for the APA report and reasonable legislative hours.

"The premier was bolting. I move the motion," he cried.

But chairman Murray ruled him out of order because Mr. Strachan had the floor. The premier subsided.

Closure Ruling

It was learned later that closure can only be moved when either the Speaker or deputy speaker is in the chair.

Half an hour later, as the CCF still pressed on, Arthur Turner asked for a recess because Mr. Martin was not in his chair.

"I am listening, I will report," said Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

"The minister is not feeling well, you know that," said

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood.

"That is why you are holding a filibuster," said Premier Bennett. "You will rue this night."

"I am not going to move closure. We sent word to the Leader of the Opposition the minister was not well this afternoon."

Debate Adjourned

"The only reason I moved the other vote was the minister was not in good health."

He then adjourned debate on the estimates—not closure, but voluntary suspension of debate.

Mr. Martin was in the corridor at the time, and left for home shortly afterwards.

After desultory discussion on a number of private bills, the House moved into committee for further clause-by-clause discussion of Bill 42, the new labor legislation.

The most controversial section banning use of union dues for political action—has already been approved.

The CCF renewed its protests at the premier's hard-driving late-hour legislature.

'Disgrace to B.C.'

"It's a disgrace to the province of B.C. that you're passing legislation at this time of day," Leo Nimick (CCF—Cranbrook) complained.

Mr. Nimick goaded the premier into an angry exchange when he suggested the reason the legislature was being submitted to such a long sitting—it started at 8 p.m.—was that the premier wanted to keep a reservation for Hawaii.

"We're not going to take these kind of remarks," said the premier. "It's not proper and fit for this House."

"You want a donnybrook in here?" asked Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

"I've got the floor," the premier claimed.

"You're at your insulting worst," said Mr. Strachan.

Mr. Bennett was furious.

But, he said, he was not going to ask Mr. Nimick to withdraw his Hawaiian remark.

"I'll be able to tell around the country what we're up against," he cried.

Strachan Once More

Mr. Strachan rose again.

"The premier can't expect that tempers will be kept well in control at 2 a.m.," he complained.

But as he spoke, Mr. Bennett kept up a steady stream of staccato: "Order, order, order, order, order."

Mr. Murray stood up and banged his gavel again. Mr. Strachan was out of order because the committee was discussing the Bill.

Mr. Nimick then remarked how disgraceful it was to legislate at the late hour.

Within minutes the government halted debate as section 6 of Bill 42 passed over CCF objections.

The section allows a union to win certification as soon as it gets an agreement with a company.

Formerly the Labor Relations Act said unions could be certified only during the last two months of their agreement.

But CCFers, led by Alex Macdonald of Vancouver-East, said the new law opened a door for company unions to make a quick deal and ensure certification without competition.

A division resulted in a 28-19 vote with the government defeating the Opposition.

Adjournment was immediately called.

Communism In Schools

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—A bill permitting the teaching of a high school course on communism, its methods and "its destructive effects" was approved by the legislature Thursday night.

The bill makes the course optional with each school.

Union Blacklist Blocks Stations From Program

TORONTO (CP)—Eleven television and radio stations across Canada have been barred from picking up the annual Easter Seals variety show from Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens Sunday.

The blacklist was submitted to the CBC Friday by the Canadian International Federation of Musicians (C.I.F.M.). A union spokesman said the list is made up of stations which have refused to hire union musicians and in some cases hire only non-union musicians.

He said the union is supplying free some 70 musicians and $25,000 worth of music to the program, held to raise funds for crippled children's work.

Mechanics' Lien Act Unchanged for Year

The legislature has been advised by its labor committee to leave the Mechanic's Lien Act unchanged at least until next year.

The committee, studying possible changes to the legislation that would limit its provisions, heard from representatives of contractor organizations, labor unions and the Canadian Bar Association and bankers.

Dissatisfaction has arisen with the present act over problems presented by creditors seeking to collect from building contractors who go broke.

Union spokesmen said litigation costs often are higher than the amount of wages the man is claiming.

Bankers have protested that when they loan money to a contractor and it is repaid, the repaid loan remains subject to claims by unsatisfied creditors of the contractor.

Committee chairman William Murray (SC—Prince Rupert) said in the committee report that the attorney-general's department should review the presentations made before the committee.

If it found it proper, the department then should bring in corrective legislation at the next session of the House.

Special consideration should be given to the Canadian Bankers' Association submission, the report said.

Train Crash Kills 22

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Twenty-two persons including seven schoolchildren were killed Friday when the Karachi Express jumped the rails at a crossing at Kotri, 120 miles north of Karachi. About 40 were injured, four critically.

A large Friday night shopping crowd watched the rescue.

Police said he apparently climbed to the 14-inch ledge from the roof of Lincoln Hotel, reaching it first by way of an alley and fire escape.

When a cry for help went up, the officer, Cons. David Glancy, and Wayne Robinson, climbed up to the roof and pulled the seaman back.

An eyewitness said Perkins appeared to be trying to regain the roof and at one point came close to tumbling as he hung on with one hand.

A call by police for a fire department jump net was cancelled as Perkins was hauled to safety.

He Clung By His Fingertips

A man who clung by his fingertips to a ledge 30 feet over the pavement at Broad and Johnson was pulled to safety by a policeman and passer-by just before midnight Friday.

SHEFFIELD WEDNESDAY CHALLENGES

Tottenham Lead Cut

LONDON (AP)—Centre-forward Gerald Young whipped in three goals today and sparked Sheffield Wednesday to a 5-1 victory over Manchester United—a victory that cut Tottenham's lead at the top of the English soccer league standings to only three points.

Now Sheffield Wednesday is right in there with a chance of stopping Tottenham's dream of winning the league and cup in one season. No English team has done that for 64 years.

Tottenham managed only a scoreless tie against Fulham today. The Spurs lead the standings with 54 points followed by Sheffield with 51 points. Wolverhampton Wanderers are third with 49. Spurs, who have already reached the cup final May 6, and Sheffield Wednesday each have played 34 games. The schedule calls for 42 matches.

Tottenham, once leading the standings by 10 points and seemingly striding away to the championship, suddenly faltered. Fulham, fifth from the bottom of the first division, matched Tottenham shot for shot.

Wolverhampton Wanderers, the only other team with a chance of stopping Tottenham, grabbed a 1-1 draw at Nottingham Forest. Both goals came in the first half. At the end it was Wolves against Notts' goalkeeper Peter Grummitt. It was Grummitt who won. He went off the field to cheers all the way.

VILLA DRAWS

Burnley, knocked out of the European cup last week by Hamburg, squeezed out a 1-1 draw against Aston Villa on an 80th-minute goal by Ian Lawson. That left Burnley in fourth place with 39 points—15 behind the leaders.

Arsenal and West Ham United ended up in a scoreless tie in another all-England clash and so did Manchester City and Bolton Wanderers in a match between two old Lancashire rivals.

Preston North End tied 0-0 against Leicester. West Bromwich Albion slammed in three first-half goals for a 3-0 victory over an Everton team packed with £250,000 ($700,000) worth of talent.

Maritime Museum Location Leads to Chamber Debate

Proposal to move the Maritime Museum of B.C. from its present site on Signal Hill in Esquimalt to the building on Wharf Street occupied by the naval reserve division, HMCS Malahat, produced sharp controversy at a meeting of Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Friday noon.

The meeting was enlivened by the presence of Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele who disagreed with a motion passed by the group endorsing the museum move.

Reeve Wurtele argued that the museum is "not merely a tourist attraction" but part of the Canadian heritage. There is no need to locate it in the centre of Victoria, he said.

The Malahat building, he claimed, is no larger in total floor space than the museum's present quarters. It is in a congested area with no parking space and no room for the museum's outside exhibits, he said.

LOVELY SITE

The reve said Esquimalt is prepared to provide a "lovely site" for the museum in the Rockheights subdivision. He expressed the hope that eventually the federal government will put up a "$20,000 or $30,000 building."

Chamber president M. Aubrey Kent didn't hold out much hope. He pointed to Ottawa's lack of interest in the Fort Rod Hill development which he felt should be the eventual site of the museum.

Capt. G. R. Newell, refuting Reeve Wurtele's argument about Esquimalt's naval association, said the Malahat building is one of the most historic port buildings in Victoria—the city's first customs house and later the harbor master's office.

Director Ian Ross claimed the question of moving the museum is not pertinent at the present time. What the museum needs immediately is money and the meeting, he urged, should concentrate on that aspect of the problem.

The meeting passed, however, a motion by Ira Hill, chairman of the public affairs group, that the chamber favored a move by the museum into the Malahat building "if such a move is agreeable to the museum board of directors."

DECORATIONS

Retail merchant's group chairman Bob Thompson secured approval of the meeting for the proposed pedestrian mall on Broad Street, trees and shrubs in planter decoration for downtown areas, and a recommendation that greater steps be taken to prevent "feeding" of parking meters through progressively higher fines for over-parking.

G. R. Genge was appointed to the board of directors to replace William Gilmour, former manager of Eaton's in Victoria who has been transferred to Vancouver.

The operators, represented by Forest Industrial Relations, opened negotiations Wednesday with the IWA, which asks an increase of 12½ cents an hour over a base rate of $1.92.

The operators propose to cut piece work pay of 300 sawyers and packers in coast shingle mills, who now earn an average of $24 a day, by 10 per cent.

They ask that the basic minimum for the 700 fallers and buckers in the woods—now $40 a day—be cut by 20 per cent.

THE SHAME OF MUNICH

Adolf Hitler demonstrated his mastery of political warfare on February 12, 1938, when he received Dr. Kurt von Schuschnigg, Chancellor of Austria, in his villa above Berchtesgaden.

Dr. Schuschnigg, who expected a calm discussion of the differences between the countries, opened the conversation with a polite comment on the splendid view of the snow-covered Alps. Hitler cut him short.

"We did not gather here to speak of the fine view or the weather," he snapped. Then he shouted: "You have done everything to avoid a friendly policy. I can tell you right now, Herr Schuschnigg, that I am absolutely determined to make an end of all this."

"I have a historic mission, and this mission I will fulfill because Providence has destined me to..."

Long Harangue

Hitler launched into an hour-long recital of his historic achievements. Then he said:

"Listen, you don't really think you can move a single stone in Austria without my hearing about it the next day, do you? ... I have only to give an order, and in one single night, all your ridiculous defences will be blown to bits."

He warned that Austria could not expect help from the outside world if Germany attacked. "England," he said, "will not move one finger for Austria." France would not intervene either, he told Schuschnigg.

"I give you once more, and for the last time, Herr Schuschnigg, the opportunity to come to terms. I can only wait until this afternoon."

During lunch, Hitler's manner changed completely. In excellent spirits, he delivered a monologue on horses and houses. But when talks resumed that afternoon, Hitler demanded the surrender of Austria to the Austrian Nazis within one week. Since the Nazis in Austria were under his thumb, this was equivalent to demanding that the country be turned over to him.

Schuschnigg started to protest, but the Führer turned on him again:

"Herr Schuschnigg, there is nothing to discuss. Here is the draft of the document. I will not change it one single iota, you will either sign it as it is and fulfill my demands within three days, or I will order the march into Austria."

Army on Move

The chancellor signed. But Hitler ordered German troops to invade Austria anyway. Although Schuschnigg had appointed Austrian Nazis to key posts, he had infuriated Hitler by scheduling a plebiscite in which the Austrian people would be asked simply whether they wished to remain "free and independent."

The plebiscite was to be held on March 13, 1938—but it never took place. Hitler knew that the Austrians would vote to remain free. To forestall such a decision, he ordered the army into Austria on March 11.

I was in Vienna that evening, and I saw the gallant little country extinguished. Hitler annexed it outright and threw Schuschnigg into jail.

Hitler's triumphant return to his native land was a spectacle I shall never forget. When he arrived at his home town of Linz, he addressed the local Nazis:

"When years ago I went forth from this town, I bore within me precisely the same profession of faith that today fills my heart. ... If Providence once called me forth from this town to be the leader of the Reich, it must have charged me with a mission, which could only be to restore my beloved homeland to the German Reich."

The corrupting chemistry of naked power was already working on this one-time Viennese tramp.

Next Victim

Hitler's next victim was Czechoslovakia. As a first step in destroying that independent republic, he demanded the "return" to Germany of 3½ million Sudeten Germans and the land they lived on. (The Sudetenland had been a part of Austria, never of Germany.) He easily won the support of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain, who was quite willing to sacrifice Czechoslovakia to preserve the peace of Europe.

Hitler and Chamberlain met on September 22, 1938, at Godesberg. That morning, the Führer brushed by me as I was breakfasting at the Hotel Dreesen, where the talks were to take place. He had a nervous tic that I had not previously observed. Every few steps, he cocked his right shoulder, his left leg snapping up as he did so. He had ugly black patches under his eyes and seemed to be on the edge of a nervous breakdown.

"Teppichfresser (carpet eater)," muttered my breakfast companion, who secretly despised the Nazis.

"Why a carpet eater?" I asked. My companion explained that Hitler had worked himself up into such a maniacal mood over the Czechs that he had taken to hurling himself on the floor and chewing the edge of the carpet. The Führer's inner circle was full of talk about it.

But to Chamberlain, the Nazi dictator presented an ice-cold manner. We correspondents were barred from the talks, but the captured secret German minutes, memoirs of eyewitnesses and a confidential British Foreign Office account enable us today to reconstruct the scene.

Sudden Switch

The prime minister began the talks in a breezy mood. At considerable political risk to himself, he said, he had brought to Hitler all the Führer had demanded during an earlier meeting. He had persuaded the Czechs to hand the Sudetenland over to Germany peacefully. "There remained only the task of working out details for an orderly transfer, and this would take a little time," Chamberlain beamed with satisfaction at his own handiwork.

But Hitler frowned. "I am terribly sorry," he said, "but this plan is no longer of any use."

Chamberlain sat up with a start. His owl-like face flushed. Hitler, like a common blackmailer, was upping his demands at the very moment they were being accepted. The Führer said he could not wait for details to be settled. Germany would have to be allowed to occupy the Sudetenland at once—or there would be war.

Chamberlain could not accept Hitler's ultimatum, but agreed to transmit the demands to the Czechs.

Next day, Hitler accepted a proposal from Chamberlain and Mussolini for a four-power conference at Munich.

In this baroque city, he now won from Chamberlain and Premier Edouard Daladier of France what he had been denied at Godesberg. How did he get it? By again threatening war—a war that the German generals later admitted Germany would have surely lost, and quickly. But Chamberlain and Daladier did not realize this. They were horrified at the very thought of an armed conflict. So they agreed that German troops could march into the Sudetenland the next day, October 1.

Humiliation

I shall never forget the light of victory in Hitler's eyes as he strutted down the broad steps of the Führerhaus after the meeting. Not only had he made another bloodless conquest; he had humiliated both the Czechs and the two great Western democracies in the process.

Yet a few days later, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, authority on war economics, heard him grumble because there had been no war and he felt cheated of a glorious march into the Czech capital. "That fellow (Chamberlain) has spoiled my entry into Prague!"

But he was soon to make that entry nonetheless—as the result of a brazen piece of political chicanery.

Hitler already had been busily maneuvering to detach Slovakia from Czechoslovakia. He had also unleashed a furious propaganda campaign, purporting to show the world that the Czechs were carrying out a reign of terror against the German minority in their midst.

Against this bizarre background, Hitler, at 1.15 a.m. on March 15, 1939, received the president of Czechoslovakia, Dr. Emil Hacha, with full military honors. Hacha was pro-German, 67 years old, senile and suffering from a weak heart. He had come to Berlin to discuss the future of any of his country. He begged Hitler to be generous.

No Choice

Hitler turned on Hacha with a torrent of abuse about the alleged wrongs little Czechoslovakia had perpetrated against the mighty German Reich. He had warned, he said, that unless Czechoslovakia mended its ways, he would "destroy this nation completely."

It had not mended its ways. So he had given the order "for the incorporation of Czechoslovakia into the German Reich."

If the Czechs resisted, they would be "broken by brute force." If they surrendered, he would accord them "a certain measure of freedom."

"He was doing all this," the minutes continued, "not from hatred, but in order to protect Germany. If last autumn (at Munich), Czechoslovakia had not given in, the Czech people would have been exterminated. No one could have prevented him from doing it. The world would not have cared a jot. He sympathized with the Czech people. ... Perhaps Hacha's visit might prevent the worst. ... The hours were passing. At 6 o'clock the troops would march in."

He wanted to give the Czech president a little time to think it over, he said. "It was a grave decision, he realized, but he saw dawning the possibility of a long period of peace between the two peoples. Should the decision be otherwise, he saw the annihilation of Czechoslovakia."

The Czech president signed the surrender of his country. A communique, drawn up hours before by Hitler, was quickly issued. It said President Hacha had "confidently placed the fate of the Czech people and country in the hands of the Führer of the German Reich."

War Declared

The Führer rushed from the scene of the signing into his office, embraced all those present and exclaimed, "Children! This is the greatest day of my life! I shall go down in history as the greatest German!"

But Hitler had won his last bloodless victory. On the first of September, 1939, his troops invaded Poland. And on September 3, France and Great Britain honored their word to assist Poland by declaring war.

NEXT—Hitler decides to attack Poland and the West.

'Report on Pensions Suppressed Until Vote'

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA—The Commons Opposition accused the government Friday of deliberately holding up action on the Clark pension report until just before the next election.

Both CCF and Liberal MPs leveled the charge. There was no immediate government reply. Health Minister Monteith had said previously the report still was being studied.

The reference was to the 1959 recommendations of professor Robert M. Clark of the University of British Columbia, given the task of saying whether the American contributory pension scheme is suitable for Canada. He reported it would be costly.

Frank Howard suggested the Conservatives used the report as a 1957 election gimmick and that since Mr. Monteith got the report, "it is probably languishing in a dusty drawer in his desk."

CCF, Liberals Wrangle Over Increase

The CCF MP for Skeena speculated the government will "come up" with Prof. Clark's recommendations just before the next federal general election "and again the old-age pensioners will be used for political purposes."

CCF Leader Argue and his colleagues said the pensions, payable to everyone 70 or over without a means test, should be raised to $75 from $55 a month.

Opposition Leader Pearson responsibility not to do so."

reiterated his party's proposal for a pension increase—but said the amount should be related to economic considerations.

Paul Martin, (L—Essex East) said at one point: "We are in favor of increases for the old-age pensioners of this country."

Mr. Howard: "But without the courage to mention a figure."

Mr. Pearson: "With enough

Better Salmon Catch Predicted for 1961

VANCOUVER (CP)—W. R. Hourston, Pacific area fisheries director, told B.C. fishermen Friday they can expect improved salmon catches in 1961 after the poorest season on record in 1960.

Mr. Hourston told the annual convention of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union sockeye runs are expected to be considerably higher this year with a run of 5,500,000 for the Fraser River, giving Canada and United States a 2,000,000 catch each.

He said the Skeena River should have a run of about 1,000,000 sockeye and a catch of about 500,000. The Nass River and Smith and Rivers inlets runs should be best in five years.

The fisheries director said the outlook for pinks is below average, however, and there is no sign of improvement in chum runs.

KISS! CRASH! GUESS WHO WAS TICKETED?

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Police gave Kathleen Eileen Ream, 19, a ticket for kissing her boy friend because the kiss caused a traffic accident.

Mike Munsterman, 20, startled by the impulsive smooch, lost control of his auto and smashed into a parked car. He received minor cuts.

Police cited Miss Ream for interfering with a driver when she admitted her kiss caused the crash.

'No Remarks to Make'

DESPITE ITS WIDELY PROPAGANDIZED slogan, the Social Credit government seems determined not to keep the public informed on matters of welfare and mental health.

The decision last night to withhold the report of the American Psychiatric Association on British Columbia's mental health services until after consideration of the health department's estimates seems to mean only one thing: the government is not prepared to make public the evidence on treatment of unfortunates in time to permit effective legislative debate on that treatment.

The report was sought after widespread criticism of deterioration in the mental health services of the province. It was to produce the facts in a sort of grand assize. The report has been completed. Why was it not given to the legislature when the estimates of the department concerned were under review?

This follows evasiveness by the Provincial Secretary when asked pointed questions on welfare.

In two recent legislative debates on the activities of his welfare department Mr. Black has said virtually nothing. Yet the welfare department has been under heavy indictment since the first of this year when Child Welfare Superintendent Ruby McKay left her position in protest against the government's policies or lack of them, and made serious charges of restriction.

Those charges have never been answered—and they were laid by an internationally known welfare expert who had been in charge of her office for 16 years only to see it starved into frustration by the Social Credit government.

The criticisms were supported by a score or more of welfare authorities throughout the province who have seen the welfare services deteriorate through lack of funds and adequate staffs.

Mr. Black's chief rejoinders have been a muttered "no comment," a mumble about "politics," and a hodgepodge of promises and appeals to the record.

Much of the "new staff" he promises will merely replace workers who have left because they find themselves unable to do their job properly under present conditions. The percentage of fully qualified workers to partially trained aides has fallen drastically from what it was in better days.

Hundreds of infants and children are in "temporary" foster homes at public expense because inadequate staffs throughout the province cannot cope with the job of interviewing and processing prospective adoption parents.

Emotionally disturbed children are not receiving the care they require—building up an appalling future loss of useful lives and money. These and other considerations have alarmed the many persons in touch with such needs—from children's services to prison authorities.

What does Mr. Black answer? He says of Miss McKay's charges: "I have no remarks to make."

He says of the shortage of workers: "All provinces suffer the same thing."

He says of the heavy welfare case loads that the unemployed swell the totals.

He says of emotionally disturbed children: "We are steering our thinking towards doing something."

He says of his "new programs" that he will report next year.

Obviously these answers are so much dust in the eyes of questioners. The Social Credit government is either unwilling to believe that serious conditions exist which demand relief, or, knowing of their existence, it chooses to do nothing about them. In either case it refuses flatly to hold an enquiry into the whole situation.

It seems lost in the grandiose economic dreams of Mr. Bennett and deaf to the pressing needs of many of the children of this province.

Cruising Down the River

NEITHER MR. DONALD FLEMING, Canada's minister of finance and Victoria's current distinguished visitor, nor Premier Bennett expects their present discussions on financing Columbia River development to produce a final answer to the problem.

Mr. Fleming has repeated the federal offer made last December to the province. Under it, Ottawa would invest $172,000,000, amounting to half the estimated costs of building the scheduled storage dams on the river, and reclaim its investment when the project begins to show a profit.

Mr. Bennett has countered with two alternative proposals. One would turn the project over to Ottawa, with the federal government assuming the cost of dams, transmission lines, repayment of engineering expenditures made by the province, "generous" compensation to British Columbia residents whose properties will be flooded, and payment to British Columbia of downstream flood benefits to compensate for the economic loss entailed by inundating provincial land. The federal government would, in effect, own the entire works and turn it over to the province either in 50 years or when earnings had paid for the developments.

Under the second proposal from Mr. Bennett, British Columbia would undertake financial responsibility for construction of all works. Ottawa would be required to guarantee that the net cost of Columbia power delivered to Vancouver would not exceed 4.25 mills, and permit the sale of surplus power to the United States at a price not lower than 4.25 mills per kilowatt hour.

The Plateau for a Park

THE ASSOCIATED CHAMBERS of Commerce of Vancouver Island doubtless will have all residents behind them in an effort to speed the dedication of the Forbidden Plateau as a park.

This is an issue which has been hanging fire for several years. When the E. & N., owners of the Plateau, were last approached by the provincial parks branch with a view to trading that region for other timber land, the railway asked for time. The E. & N. was in the process of making a forest inventory covering all its holdings. It asked that negotiations with the province await completion of that work.

The inventory has not been finished. Negotiations should resume in another few weeks. At that time efforts will be made by the province to redefine boundaries of Strathcona Park to take in the Plateau—or the scenic and recreational parts of it—in exchange for provincially-owned timber.

Such an arrangement would be welcomed by the public. It has known, either at first hand or by report, of the Forbidden Plateau as one of the finest park areas in the province. Most of the alpine region is more valuable as scenery than as a source of timber. An exchange should not be difficult.

'With Lotsa Love'

THE UNITED STATES LAWN Tennis Association has invited the Soviet Union to send a tennis team to compete in the American national clay courts tournament starting on July 11 and in several other following events.

Here is one activity in which the American doubtless hopes to assure the Russian, "I can't give you anything but love."

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

A WALK in to Bluff Mountain, off the Otter Point Road at Sooke, can lead to an interesting adventure.

As you go along the logging road where it cuts through the gravel and clay banks dipping down to Demanian Creek, you can see the different strata of sand and boulders laid down by the glaciers. In many places it seems as if the masses of different material had got into a giant mixer.

When you get to the creek you can see where the rushing waters have cut a deep gorge through the softer limestone and formed beautiful waterfalls. Along the stream bed there are huge boulders that break the monotony of the running water, making a beautiful picture.

Look into some of the little crevasses and you will find the tiny mimula or monkey flower with its spotted yellow bloom nodding in the winds. In some sheltered spots the yellow violet is shyly showing its color in the undergrowth.

The evergreen huckleberry with its urn-shaped flowers is now in blossom, mingling with the hairy manzanita. In the swamps the golden sheath of the skunk cabbage stands out with startling effect.

FROM WASHINGTON

The Ordeal of Making Choices in Closed, Secret Rooms

THE Laos crisis has given President Kennedy his first major experience of the harsh ordeal which can never be escaped by any man who wins the leadership of a great nation in troubled times. This is the ordeal of making choices, in closed and secret rooms, often for closed and secret reasons, with the heavy knowledge that the choices finally made must intimately affect the fate of tens and even hundreds of millions of men and women. It came sooner for Kennedy than for almost any of his predecessors.

Cool Competence

It is not surprising that Kennedy's cool competence has much impressed these men who have been watching him, so to say, taking the heat in the sweat-box of History. His rapid mastery of facts, his knack of asking the right penetrating question, his power to envision problems both widely and in minute detail, are the current commonplaces of the political community.

His bitterest enemies no longer argue that Kennedy is incompetent or juvenile.

What is surprising is the deep impression the President has made by his peculiar, highly personal response to the domestic-political implications of the Laos crisis.

Being a thoroughly realistic politician, Kennedy is well aware that the Democrats' heaviest handicap is their reputation as the "party of wars," just as the Republicans' biggest asset is their repeated claim to be the "peace party."

Domestic Reaction

The choice in Laos, as it is becoming more and more clear, may eventually become a choice between war and peace. In the endless White House meetings on the Laos problem, the President has quite often noted that a war for Laos, or for almost anywhere else for that matter, would quite probably permit the Republicans to win the White House in 1964, and to remain in power for long thereafter.

But having said this, the President has always gone on to discuss without prejudice the facts of the Laos problem, its local difficulties, its world-wide dangers, and its possible solutions.

The domestic-political aspect has only been mentioned, in short, as a kind of rueful footnote in the much larger and more important discussion of what needed to be done about Laos.

Probably the President is right that he will weaken his chance of re-election if he meets the Communist challenge in Southeast Asia. Yet it is doubly unjust that this should be so. It is unjust, first of all, because American military intervention to prevent the Communist capture of Laos was already under active consideration at the end of the Eisenhower administration.

About twenty days before the White House changed hands, former Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Defense Department representatives even agreed on a plan for immediate air intervention by American planes flying from a carrier held ready in the Gulf of Tonkin, in co-operation with planes of Thailand's air force.

The plan, though agreed upon, was not executed because of the feeling that decisions of this gravity had better be left to the new Administration.

Final Briefing

But on Jan. 19, when the incoming Kennedy received his final briefing at the White House, part of the briefing was a clear warning that the position in Laos might deteriorate quite soon to the point where military intervention might be the only saving course.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Phony Claim

In sum, the phoniness of the claim of the cheap sort of Republicans, that they have an exclusive patent on peace, was very nearly proven in action before Kennedy took office. But that is only half the injustice, whose other half resides in the claim itself.

Would these praters about peace and war parties have had Roosevelt tamely submit when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, or would they have liked Truman to yield all Asia to the Communists by ducking the challenge in Korea?

The answer given by Republicans like Herter is the same answer that one hopes Kennedy will also give, that the test of both parties in grave crises is whether their leaders do what needs to be done.

FROM OTTAWA

Setting Up an Issue for the Next Federal Election

THE next federal election, says Prime Minister Diefenbaker, will be fought on the issue of Conservative free enterprise versus the onerous socialism.

Under the term socialism, he lumps the Liberals, the CCF-New Party, and anyone else who sticks up his head to seek public office. Although few Conservatives had thought of things in exactly that way before, they are already carrying the message across the country.

A young Tory was heard on a CBC TV show the other night, solemnly shaking his head, and proclaiming the next election issue would be, in fact, Conservative free enterprise versus socialism.

A companion on the show agreed wholeheartedly. "Yes," she said, "we have gone far enough toward the welfare state."

Without for a minute conceding that this issue will be a major issue in the next campaign (and with the highest level of unemployment in the Western world it is doubtful if it will), it is interesting to examine the Conservative position.

Socialism is a very difficult thing to define. Canadians have shown in repeated trips to the ballot box they don't like socialism, but through some quirk in the national personality they adore socialism under any other name.

For the sake of clarity, let us consider socialism to be confined to welfare measures. Here is what a pamphlet issued at the Tory convention had to say on that subject:

"Social justice payments—old age security and assistance, blind and disability allowances, unemployment assistance, hospital insurance and hospital construction grants—have increased by 53 per cent."

The same booklet claims that a Tory government has done more by way of direct action to create more new jobs than any government in Canadian history.

You can't have it both ways! There is no validity to the argument of Mr. Diefenbaker, of course. He is merely attempting to set up a non-existent issue with which to divert attention from the government's record in office.

And that is one of the disquieting features of the federal political scene at the present time. Time after time, Conservative ministers will set up a straw man, and beat it to death as a diversion.

The recent CBC show on the plight of an unemployed family is a case in point. Labor Minister Starr and his colleagues, by introducing irrelevant information, termed the show a hoax, and thousands of disillusioned Canadians lost any sympathy they may have had for the plight of hundreds of thousands of unemployed.

Buttonhole any Tory MP on the subject of unemployment, and he will give you the party line: "I don't understand all this talk about people being unemployed. Let's drive the fakers off the unemployment insurance rolls."

Defence Minister Harkness followed the same line of doublethink in attempting to brand all critics of the government's wandering defence policy as pacifists or neutralists.

Trade Minister George Hees and Associate Defence Minister Sevigny are right in step. They have accused the Liberals of creating unemployment, by talking about unemployment. Anyone, by their George Orwellian thinking, who discusses the subject is an enemy of the Canadian people.

These are the tricks of demagogues. But surely they have no place in democracy.

Still more disquieting is the atmosphere in the House of Commons, where scores of Tory backbenchers scream hysterically when an opposition MP is making a telling speech. "Cochoo," (pig), "shut up," "dirty mouth," "Communist," are but a few of the somewhat unparliamentary epithets swirling through the chamber.

AN ENLARGED EXPERIENCE OF B.C.

I Saw Other Things Besides Skiers, Snow... and Bullfights

I AM inclined to agree with Virginia Woolf that without what she called "enlargement of experience" life very soon becomes static and intolerably dull.

My experience of British Columbia was considerably enlarged last week by a rapid trip up the Fraser Valley, through the Okanagan and up to Revelstoke, a journey which introduced me to new sights, new places and new people. I began to break new ground from the moment the bus from Chilliwack left Hope to traverse the Hope-Princeton Highway, and as if to put the best complexion on a novel scene for me, the steady downpour of the Fraser Valley gave way to bright sunshine reflected off the snow on the sides of the road.

One of the features of the trip was a revelation of the extent to which the sport of skiing is gripping the imagination of thousands of people in the province.

Olympian Idea

Big posters in Vancouver had solicited my support for the idea of Garibaldi as a venue for the 1968 Olympics. The bus stopped briefly at Manning Park, but before it moved off I had time to read a notice canvassing the claims of Manning Park as the ideal site for the winter events in 1968.

At Penticton the talk was of the splendours of Apex Mountain, where sunshine was a commonplace and six inches of powder snow the regular allowance throughout the winter.

Vernon was equally scornful of Penticton to the south, where, they hinted, a mere handful of rubes on barrelstaves was floundering through slush, and of Kamloops to the north. The new Toot Mountain development sounded all right, they agreed, but planning a two-mile chairlift was a very different matter from building it. And once built, who was going to use it?

In Kamloops I found nobody disposed to question the drawing power of their mountain. Where were the skiers going to come from to make the longest chairlift in North America a paying proposition? Why, where but from among those unenlightened thousands who have hitherto wasted their time and money at Sun Valley, Aspen, Alta and Banff.

Another Claim

What was the first thing I saw as the train pulled in to Revelstoke on Friday morning as the sun was setting light to the snowcaps on the surrounding peaks? You guessed it: a large notice which proclaimed the unique fitness of Revelstoke as the place to hold the 1968 Winter Olympics. I could only hope that, if Revelstoke is chosen, there will be more snow there in 1968 than there is right now, when there is less than at any time in living memory.

I saw other things besides skiers and snow and Olympic propaganda. Magpies, for instance, by Kalamalka Lake. To see a magpie in England is nothing out of the ordinary—though to be sure the superstitious bow their head and count rapidly backwards from ten to zero, as if escaped from Canaveral—but these were the first I had seen for nearly eight years.

Between Vernon and Kamloops the bus was suddenly transformed into a local diligence, with country badinage flowing back and forth between passengers, bystanders at our rural ports of call, and the man identified on the label above his head as "Your Operator"—F. Oakes—Safe, Reliable, Courteous. We called him Frank.

Gnarled Veterans

As we pulled into Forkland Frank said, "You can tell it's spring. Look at the old timers sittin' in the sun." Outside the general store a little knot of gnarled and wrinkled veterans was discussing the cost of Archie's paint job compared with the deal Jim got on shingles for his place.

They sped us on our way with a shaft of rustic wit: "member, Frank—th' faster ye go, th' safer it is!" From the implications of this rib-cracker, and from the increasing frequency of road signs which exhorted me to "Slow to 50," I judged that Kamloops was near. And so it proved.

Speeding past the hopfields of Dallas and the wild white swans on the Thompson, past the impressive rounded ribs of the dusty brown hills, we were soon in Kamloops. I noticed that the neon sign over a hardware store was defective. The first three letters in the word "Appliances" were unlit, as were also the last three, and the seventh letter was faulty, looking more like an "r" than an "n." A strange legend to see glowing brightly on a hard, clear Cariboo morning.

I paid a pilgrim's visit to the Calvary Temple, and hastened to Kamloops museum, only to find it closed. A photograph outside showed Kamloops in 1906, which stimulated in me some speculation of a "crackerbarrel" philosophic nature.

In the library I poked around to see what kind of books I would have to choose from if I lived in Kamloops. Joyce was represented by "Dubliners" and "Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man"; no "Ulysses," no "Finnegans Wake."

But to offset this, Kamloops has on its shelves Wyndham Lewis's "Fildusters in Barbary" and "The Wild Body," in their original editions of 1927 and 1933: two books which are virtually unobtainable anywhere else. And Lewis's famous novel "Tarr" (the first modern novel as it has justly been called by Archbishop Eliot) which we don't have in our public library here, winked at me from the shelf in its Travellers' Library binding.

Kamloops had another surprise for me. As I entered my hotel my eye was caught by a bullfight poster. I had known of Kamloops as the gateway to the cattle country, but it was news to me that tauromachy flourished there. Yet here was a corrida that promised well.

Blood and Sand

Manolete and Ortega and Juanito Belmonte were down to fight a pair of bulls apiece, and I was looking forward to seeing Mr. Gagliardi tossing down the key of the bull's corral to the alguacil. I was about to enquire where I could buy a seat in the barreras and a dozen bottles of manzanilla, when I saw that the corrida had already taken place. In Valencia. In 1944.

The poster was part of the decor for something called the Toreador Room. Wining at the ignorance of anyone who could still use the word "torador" after all Papa Hemingway has said, this tired old aficionado turned away.

Carved Wood Sculptures
Result of Long Research

Outdoor life and birds in particular are of interest to a great many people. Children especially will enjoy the fine collection of birds, as seen in and about Victoria, on display at the Art Gallery, the creations of Mrs. L. C. Sweeney.

With an expert hand she has fashioned in wood, the House Wren, Chickadee, Nut Hatch, with a keen eye reproducing, true to life, their intricate coloring. Among the finer carvings are the White Crown Sparrow, Mountain Blue Bird and the Olive-Backed Swallow.

In order to view the birds at close range, to watch their mannerisms, and to note minute details, Mrs. Sweeney erected a tray or feeder in her garden, and endless study, not without enjoyment, has been spent in this occupation.

Only after long hours of research does the creative artist take over in the modelling and carving. The correct textures, glass eyes and colors are added, and the finished bird is then mounted on a piece of "drift" wood. With all the subjects the base seems appropriate to the native surroundings of the bird and the completed study is a joy to behold.

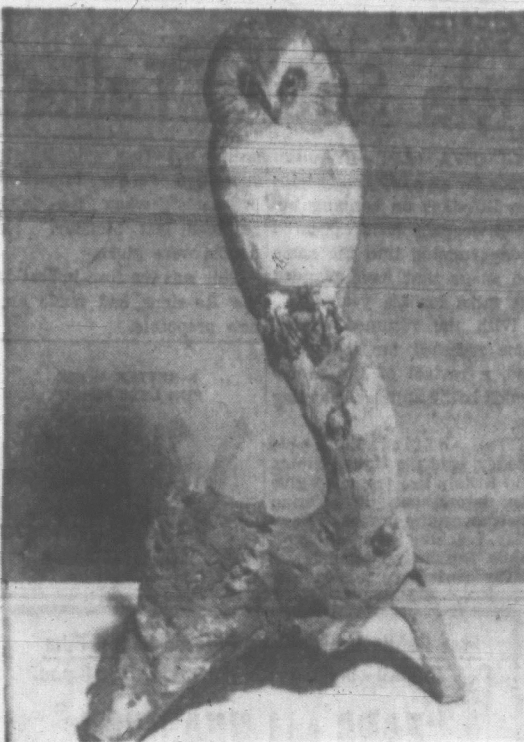

A quality is lacking in the oil paintings by Mrs. Sweeney, and many of them just miss the professional level. Still others lack that something

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

Compilers of lists of the world's great books always recommend the Essays of Michel de Montaigne; the reader, faint from his grappings with the Greeks, the Romans and the giants of the Renaissance, takes up the book with a sense of expectation and relief.

Essays—they will surely be personal, loose in form, perhaps even amusing? Indeed, Montaigne's essays are all these things, but they are hard chewing, as well.

Montaigne was the inventor of the personal essay. This retired, scholarly, intellectually adventurous French country gentleman set to work to explore his own mind, to discover what he really knew and thought about the world around him, and the essay was the form he invented for his purpose.

The popularity and influence his books achieved—Francis Bacon and Shakespeare both knew them and took color from them—has persisted until our own time.

But Montaigne is not loved because, in Florio's translation, he seems to be a quaint philosopher, but because he struggles with questions which are as pressing now as they were in the sixteenth century.

Every essayist owes something to Montaigne, though he may be unconscious of his debt.

The essay is neither a treatise on a set theme, nor is it completely a work of imagination.

Essayist Lamb Caused Decline

The successors to Montaigne are numbered in thousands. There are names honored in literature because of essays alone; Charles Lamb is a prime example. But to Lamb, unfortunately, we must attribute much of the decline of the essay as a literary form during the later nineteenth century.

He was personal, he was gentle, he was whimsical, he was learned—but he had a sturdy mind and a good earthy sense of life.

His imitators were personal, gentle, whimsical (O so gently, so sweetly whimsical!) learned, and too often of a feeble, wincing spirit.

They mimed, they ogled their readers from the printed page; they wrote like men who habitually wore lace drawers. They thought of themselves as Lams, but they were bleating, woolly old sheep.

If the essay had not been so fine a form of expression, and so useful, they would have killed it.

In our own time the essay has recovered, somewhat, though there are rather too many writers who think that the looseness of the form may be stretched to include random and inconclusive expressions of personal prejudice.

There are two writers in our day who have used the essay as its great practitioners have used it: both are Englishmen of widely differing temperament. They are J. B. Priestley and Aldous Huxley.

Priestley's collected essays, called "All About Ourselves", appeared in 1956. He touches on a great variety of topics, and though his manner is contentious and sometimes belligerent, there lies behind the manner a spirit which is sweet, curiously innocent and distinguished by an immense gusto for life.

It is fashionable to decry Priestley because of his essential optimism, for pessimism is always in fashion with the young and the poor in spirit, but he defends it brilliantly in his essays; indeed, he seems often to be Chestertonian in his assertion of the essential goodness of life.

Huxley, on the other hand, is acutely learned and wittily gloomy, though the final effect of his essays is to raise the reader's spirits.

Within the past year two books of his work in this form, one called Collected Essays, and the other On Art and Artists have appeared, and they overlap only slightly in their content. I recommend them as mental stimulus.

Though dissimilar in superficial things, Priestley and Huxley are alike in one vital thing; both have used life as a pilgrimage toward self-discovery.

They have not relaxed in the atmosphere of fame and financial success which has gathered around their work; they have not, as successful writers are tempted to do, died three decades before their burial.

They continue to ask "What do I know," and to give their answers as honestly as they can, and thus they are worthy successors of Montaigne.

Virtue Without Vision Dimmed Lustre;
Romantic Histories of Power and Steel

ALEXANDER MACKENZIE: CLEAR GRIT, by Dale C. Thomson. MacMillan Company of Canada Ltd. Illustrated. Index. Bibliography. 436 pages. $6.75.

Reviewed By R. H. ROY

In 1842 a young Scots immigrant, a stonemason by trade, arrived in Canada with 16 shillings in his pocket. His name was Alexander MacKenzie, and 30 years after his arrival he was to defeat the great Sir John A. Macdonald and become, from 1874 to 1878, the prime minister of Canada.

MacKenzie has been called "Canada's Unknown Prime Minister," and with good reason.

His term of office corresponded with that of a general depression. Furthermore, it came just after the stirring years leading up to Confederation and just before Canada's economic awakening which saw the CPR span the continent and a rush of immigration to the prairies. He controlled the government—the first and only Liberal ministry until Laurier's time—in a dead period of Canada's internal and external affairs.

SKIPPED OVER

This in itself is enough to cause his name to be skipped over or treated casually by Canadian historians and historians alike.

If MacKenzie was in office for only a short time, surely his was one of the most honest administrations to govern Canadian affairs. Firmest political plank in the Clear Grit or Liberal platform was the promise to end corruption and bribery which had been fairly common in years gone by.

In this respect MacKenzie's integrity could not be shaken, and so closely did he adhere to Liberal principles that neither during nor after his ministry would he accept knighthood which was offered to him.

B.C. PRESSURE

Students of British Columbia history will be interested in the light Dr. Thomson throws on the "Carnarvon Terms" in particular, and in general on the difficult position MacKenzie found himself in when being pressed by British Columbia to complete the CPR according to the terms of union and yet having to face up to the decreasing national revenue resulting from the economic recession.

Dr. Thomson's study of Alexander MacKenzie will remain as the definitive biography of this sturdy Liberal for many years to come.

It displays a massive amount of research, a firm grasp of the rather complicated political situation in the pre- and post-Confederation era, and a definite sympathy for the virtuous, hard-working, highly-principled Scot.

This book will be of primary value to those interested in Canadian history and politics. It is a close, intensive study of a man who had political virtue but lacked vision, a man who won respect and admiration, but one who was wanting in the charm, color and bonhomie of his great if somewhat unscrupulous opponent, "John A."

Although political histories of Canada, or at least the biographies of outstanding political figures in Canadian history, have been coming off the presses at an increasing rate, one or two economic histories of interest to Canadians deserve mention.

The first, written by William Kilbourn, an assistant professor of history at McMaster University is called The Elements Combined, A History of the Steel Company of Canada, ($6.50). This 335-page book is a well-written story of "Stelco" with the greatest emphasis on the period from 1910 to the present.

Fortunately the author has not overlooked the early roots of the company which he traces back to the 18th century.

Illustrated with woodcuts by Rosemary Kilbourn, and complete with the charts and graphs which help the layman see at a glance the growth, development and organization of this giant corporation, it is a book which will appeal to many. The Elements Combined is published by Clarke, Irwin and Co.

In the same year the merger took place which resulted in the birth of "Stelco," another event occurred in Ontario which was to have far reaching effects.

In mid-October, 1910, Kitchener, Ontario received electric power brought to it from Niagara Falls, 100 miles away. This was the beginning of Ontario Hydro, as it is commonly called, or more properly the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Mr. Merrill Dension, author of The People's Power is well known for his books on both American and Canadian industries and in this instance he has displayed his usual talents in putting life into what could have been a work aimed primarily at the specialist.

On the contrary, The People's Power ($7.50) is a well-written, lavishly illustrated book which should interest many British Columbians especially in the light of recent events regarding the harnessing of the Columbia River.

It is published by McClelland and Stewart.

Classics Shun Pedantry
In Humanistic Studies

ESSAYS IN ANTIQUITY. By Peter Green. Macmillan of Canada, 224 pages. $1.25.

Reviewed by Peter L. Smith

Gilbert Highet tells of the English classicist who announced to his students, with solemn reverence, "Boys, this term you are to have the privilege of studying the Oedipus Coloneus of Sophocles—a veritable treasure-house of grammatical peculiarities." Highet's schoolmaster is perhaps apocryphal, but he epitomizes the pedantic traditionalism that has all but buried the "dead languages" in the past century.

Fortunately, there has been a recent reaction against academic pedantry in classical studies; and Peter Green shares the spirit of this refreshing trend in his attractive collection of essays.

Here are truly humanistic studies on aspects of the ancient world that range from Homer to Pliny, from Herodotus to Juvenal. Dr. Green, a classicist who is also, journalist, historical novelist, and biographer (Kenneth Graham), brings to his scholarship a vitality of outlook and of style.

There is one serious difficulty in a collection of this sort: the non-specialist, for whom the book is intended, may be confused by the adjustment in historical background required by the leap from one essay to the next.

Some readers may wish that Dr. Green had chosen to explore fewer subjects, in order to increase understanding and to achieve greater historical penetration.

Still, all are likely to enjoy, for example, Green's excellent sketch of Hesiod and his society ("Hodge on Helicon"), his clarification of the Stoic and Epicurean philosophies,

A TRIBUTE TO THE TEACHING PROFESSION
FROM WORLD BOOK ENCYCLOPEDIA...

Years down the corridor of life, a surgeon in the hush of an operating room will make a sure incision; an architect will lean back from the drawing board which bears his vision of the perfect city; an economist will set forth his plan which can end the spectre of poverty for all. These are dramatic vignettes—far removed, perhaps, from the humdrum of the classroom.

No matter what great break-throughs may transpire, however, you may be sure of this common denominator: the teacher provides the influence, the encouragement, the training, and the guidance that make modern and future marvels possible.

The Sounding Board
By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

The plight of youth is the subject of so much discussion, so many treatises, such a vast amount of research, these days that it is a subject that finds its way into almost every serious conversation sooner or later.

There is the plight of the under-privileged children of impoverished homes, of the dis-oriented children of broken homes; of the retarded, the traumatic; the high IQ delinquent and the low IQ delinquent.

They are all serious and very real problems, no doubt of that.

But I have come to the conclusion that there is another category that is far less well understood and which is not likely to get the constructive attention of any agency outside the individual intelligent and perceptive parent.

I refer to the plight of the talented child.

This is the problem, not of the neglected, but of the over-attended child.

Say a youngster shows a pronounced talent for music, ballet, acting. This is, of course, a welcome discovery and means, if correctly handled, a lifetime of happiness.

Inflated-Ego Menaces Talent

Personally if I found a child was being constantly praised and pushed to the fore by his teacher, he would soon have another teacher; and if I found his name was too frequently cropping up in newspapers surrounded by superlatives of an admiring scribe, I would have him in deep freeze before he knew what had happened.

But there is more to this question than simply the inflating of youthful ego to the point where pressure on his talent glands begins to cause damage.

What about possibly serious psychiatric complications later on when the bubble reputation bursts?

When the youngster who has been nurtured in an artificial hothouse atmosphere of adulation and promotion is finally forced to face the real world and discovers that his talent is a minuscule thing in comparison to what many others possess?

How is he going to react, having spent a long youth preparing for a career in which, as an adult, he finds himself outdistanced from the start?

I can tell you because I have seen several instances of this sort. In many cases the young artist will settle with more or less good grace for something else. But there can be violent disappointment and as violent reaction that will color his whole subsequent attitude to life.

Or the effect has sometimes been a helpless sort of drifting which, even if only temporary, is a painful and unnecessary experience that often leaves some psychological scarring.

Criticism, Not Praise, Best Friend

Suppose you do discover in your child of five or six or eight or 10, a noticeable talent for the dance or music — a happy facility for violin or piano or a charming voice — and suppose you jump optimistically to the conclusion that you have a potential Fonteyn or Gould or Marshall on your hands.

The best thing you can do with such a thought is to bury it as deeply as possible and carry on as though your child were quite average.

The only acknowledgement in all conscience that you should make to what you fondly suspect may be the mark of genius, is to provide the best possible teaching and as frequent opportunities as feasible for hearing and observing the work of others in the field.

And for goodness sake, don't encourage the child to be too much of a single-track personality at this early stage.

If he is to be a good artist in any medium, provide him with as wide an exposure to the whole realm of fine arts as you can manage.

No one can tell initially, to any exact degree just how great a talent is or, more particularly, how far its owner is likely to be able to expand it. Too many imponderables are involved in the matter of temperament and character.

How many among hundreds of budding ballerinas in every Canadian town and city turn out to be Lynn Seymours, Lois Smiths or even Louis Smiths? How many aspiring young singers achieve the status of a Maureen Forrester or a Teresa Stratas?

It takes exactly the right combination of intelligence, drive, application, persistence and vitality, plus a little good timing and an enormous amount of talent, to emerge at the top of the heap.

And those are elements that will only make themselves apparent with advancing maturity.

Top-Rank Adjudicators Provide Master-Classes

Quality of a competitive festival, as well as its success, is much influenced by the adjudicator's qualifications and personality.

Victoria Music Festival has been fortunate ever since its post-war re-instatement, but spectacularly so in 1960 when Britain's Roy Hickman and Canada's Boris Roubakine headed the panel.

In such instances — and in the recent schools drama festival with Myra Benson adjudicating — it is not only the competitors and participating casts who benefit enormously from the fresh, informed and penetrating analysis of the work on view.

T. S. TURNER... to judge vocal work

Audiences who attend such music festival and drama sessions, are virtually sitting in on master classes, where so great a wealth of information and ideas is flying about that some of it is bound to adhere to the spectators.

Two of this year's Victoria Music Festival adjudicators will come from abroad. They are members of the team of British adjudicators who will serve Canadian festivals from coast to coast.

Major task of judging vocal and choral classes will fall to Timothy S. Turner, F.R.C.O., B.Mus., Her Majesty's Principal Inspector of Music at Belfast.

Mr. Turner studied with Gordon Slater, Sir E. C. Balgownie and Sir Henry Wood, among others, and gained his Bachelor of Music degree at Dunelm in 1935.

He was deputy conductor of the Hull Choral Union and conductor, FRAM, coming to Victoria to judge piano classes, is exceptionally well equipped for his task.

Mr. Murdoch had a brilliant student career from the beginning age of five.

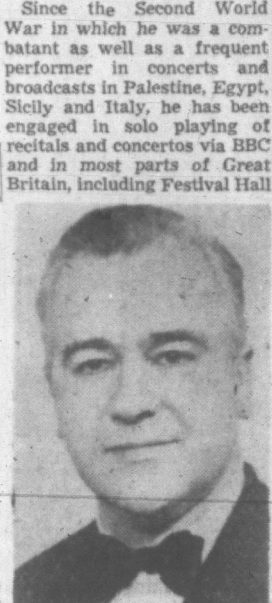

He studied in Vienna for six months under the late Emil Sauer and subsequently won an open scholarship providing him with four years' tuition at the Royal Academy. While there he won the Macfarren Gold Medal for piano, and played concertos under Sir Henry Wood.

Since the Second World War in which he was a combatant as well as a frequent performer in concerts and broadcasts in Palestine, Egypt, Sicily and Italy, he has been engaged in solo playing of recitals and concertos via BBC and in most parts of Great Britain, including Festival Hall.

A well known broadcaster and recitalist in Great Britain, he is an authority on choral technique which he studied with Norman Stratford and the Leeds Festival Choir.

Mr. Turner has let it be known that he looks forward to meeting with school music teachers, organists and others, in order that he may be of utmost help and also that he may be able to learn the Canadian approach to music and education.

With a professorship in piano at the Royal Academy of Music and as adjudicator with the British Federation of Music Festivals, Dennis Murdoch, FRAM, coming to Victoria to judge piano classes, is exceptionally well equipped for his task.

Dedicated Actress Dons Casual Manner

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—The glamor whirl, in which some show stars revel, holds no lure for blonde Angela Lansbury.

"I don't think I've ever actually believed it's all real," says the lady who looks a natural for the glitter life of spotlights and sables.

Explaining just what she is, Miss Lansbury says:

"I've never worked at being an actress."

Such airy appraisal of her own skills fools no one acquainted with the Lansbury stage and screen record, now being augmented with her appearance on Broadway in A Taste of Honey.

Behind the cherubic, heart-shaped face, Angela is hard at work.

The quickest way to spark fire is to suggest that a performer's function in the complex process of show creation is a matter of passively saying lines that someone else wrote and someone else directed.

ACTRESS CREATES

"That really gets under my skin," she comments. "I'm very emphatic about the actor's creative responsibility."

At the same time, she is aware spectators often don't appreciate all they're seeing. "Most of those dears are only aware of the outer facade of a performance. They aren't aware of the inner wheels that are working in the creation of a character."

In "A Taste of Honey," Miss Lansbury is a brassy, rowdy mother, inured to the seamy existence of life in an English factory town. Her stage daughter is Joan Plowright.

"I know those sort of women and understand them," she says. "They're not freaks or unusual by any means. But this woman isn't easy to do. It takes a drive I've never been called on to produce before."

(BB PLUS) "OPERATION EICHMANN" (Capitol): Here is the purportedly true story of mass-killer Adolf Otto Eichmann, a film labelled as "the secret story the trial will never tell."

As most adults remember, Eichmann was picked up in a relatively short while ago in South America and spirited to Israel—a nation who never forgot that the Nazi was allegedly responsible for the deaths of 6,000,000 innocent persons, men, women and children—most of them Jews.

Unfortunately the story skips about to such a degree that the whole winds up with a disjointed air. What's more, in spite of the capable acting of principals Werner Klemperer, Ruta Lee, Donald Buka, Steve Gravers and Barbara Turner, one can't help but wonder where truth and propaganda merge.

This is the sort of thing that calls rather for terse, dispassionate and objective documentation.

Nonetheless, sights of the ovens and the baked bodies, the mountains of human bones, the stacked and banded cadavers being inspected by General Eisenhower and his staff are enough to make one forget everything except one's rage against the perpetrators of this crime against civilization.

And yet so terrible is it that the mind falls in wondering what justice to mete out against those caught and found guilty in these long years since.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Warner Brothers reports it will film two top Broadway plays, "The Music Man" and "Gypsy."

"The Music Man" will be produced by Morte DeCosta, and "Gypsy"—the story of Gypsy Rose Lee—will be produced by David Merrick and Roland Hayward.

Get On With It, Ministers Tell North Railway

The Pacific Northern Railway will now either have to get on with the job or abandon its scheme, two cabinet ministers said Friday.

They indicated in the legislature the B.C. government could take over the PNR's plans for and surveys for a rail line 700 miles from Summit Lake to the Yukon border near Atlin Lake.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston and Attorney-General Robert Bonner said it had been essential to decide the fate of the project to introduce legislation absolving the railway from control by the B.C. Public Utilities Commission.

"This is to cut the Gordian knot," said Mr. Bonner.

TIMBER STANDS

Mr. Williston said there were valuable timber stands and possible mineral lodes in the area along the proposed line. If the line did not go ahead, there would be no development of these resources.

It would not be possible to operate a profitable rail line in order to competitively transport these resources.

If freight rates were too high it would not be possible to move the timber out.

The PUC requires economic feasibility before it issues a certificate to go ahead. It was feared that the PNR project would not meet the PUC's terms.

The railway had been stalled by dual jurisdiction—the PUC and the Railway Act.

Mr. Bonner said the new legislation means: "Either they get on with the job or get off the scheme entirely."

GENUINE PLANS

"If these people are not coming forward with genuine plans which will assure development going forward we

TWO DIE WHEN CAR MISSES TURN

PRINC GEORGE (CP). — Two men were killed and a third injured here Friday night when their car missed a turn on the new Vanderhoof highway and plunged into a ditch.

Dead are Hugh Cameron Mackenzie, about 41, and William A. Swain.

The third man, Herbie Emil Holworth, 23, was in fair condition in hospital.

The three men were from Prince George.

are not interested in their plans, he added.

"This administration will not be party to any stock promotion scheme," he told CCFers, who said they were afraid this is just what the PNR is.

The ministers said the PNR is a "pioneer" line. The PUC had felt it was not set up to rule on such ventures.

Alex Macdonald (CCF—Vancouver East) said the government would have the right to proceed itself if the railway forfeited its plans. He said he was afraid, though, that the PNR simply wanted to avoid public hearings, which the PUC would have required before any further construction.

Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) said, even if the line was uneconomic it still could be argued that it was a "public necessity" and as such entitled to a certificate of public convenience and necessity from the PUC.

LIVELY TWO-HOUR CONCERT

Rotary Boys' Choir Has Special Charm

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A lively, well-disciplined and thoroughly enjoyable concert of nearly two hours' duration was provided Friday night by one of the city's younger ensembles, the Rotary Boys' Choir.

Obviously trained with care and devotion by their conductor, William Hastings, the boys—of all ages from very young sopranos to bass-voiced teenagers—sang with good vitality and a simple directness that had its own special charm.

Tone was almost always of a pleasant quality and quite often really beautiful, and there was a minimum of insecurity in pitch, which spoke well for their musical attention.

Color range is somewhat limited at the moment so that characterization of the many and varied songs could hardly be called distinctive.

But a significant thing is that it is possible to hear every word distinctly. This is a real accomplishment and one I wish they could impart to some adult choirs and soloists I can think of.

The ensemble rejoices in several promising soloists, among them Reno Elverhoy, William Ritchie, Ken Smith, Terry McBratney and Robert Hall.

There were 23 numbers on the program, including Beethoven's Creations Hymn, Mendelssohn's "If With all Your Hearts," Negro spirituals, a Newfoundland sea chanty, "Seventy-Six Trombones," "The Lord's Prayer," "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," and "The Hoov Wanderer."

Accompanist throughout was Mrs. Helen McVie, who provided the boys with a most sympathetic support.

Teachers Oppose Lengthening Of School Day

Objection to proposed lengthening of the school day was made to Education Minister Peterson Friday by Vancouver Secondary School Teachers' Association.

The association's letter said it would be "a facile change which may give the impression that a forward step is being taken and yet, of itself, does not insure that educational standards are being improved."

The protest said a fully-planned implementation of the Chant Report should be made in the schools rather than "piecemeal adjustments."

"Terrific!" says Mrs. Hugh Downs

"April McCall's is just full of surprises. Never in my life have I seen so many exciting things in a magazine. I didn't think McCall's could top itself, but the April issue has done just that."

CHATTERTON FORECAST

Building Boom Seen in Saanich

George Chatterton, reeve of Saanich and Progressive Conservative candidate in the coming Esquimalt-Saanich by-election, Friday predicted a "boom" building year in the municipality.

He made his prediction in brief remarks at a political rally at which Finance Minister Donald Fleming was main speaker. (See page 12.)

The increase in building would be occasioned mainly by federal government legislation which had reduced down payments under the National Housing Act.

Also, under the Veterans' Land Act, housing starts in Saanich from mid-February to mid-March this year totalled 243 compared with 47 in 1960.

On winter works, he criticized a Liberal claim that only 10 men were employed in the program throughout Greater Victoria.

There were more than 100 in the four municipalities, Mr. Chatterton stated.

TORY RALLY PICKETED

Three members of the Victoria Council of Unemployed picketed the political rally Friday at which Finance Minister Donald Fleming and Progressive Conservative candidate George Chatterton were speakers.

Spokesman Ted Davey, chairman of the membership committee, said the picketing was "to bring to the attention of the government the unemployment situation."

Ed's Fondness for Cats Is One-Sided Friendship

Stankiewicz Gets Big Goals As Totems Defeat Cougars

Totems 5, Cougars 3

By DOUG PEDEEN

Eddie Stankiewicz is mighty happy Victoria Cougars are in the Western Hockey League, but we can assure you that today the feeling isn't the least bit mutual.

It's been a lean season for the sturdy little Seattle winger who got away to a slow start after a summer knee operation. Eddie, who fired 33 goals for Edmonton five years ago, has drilled 17 in the current campaign with only five games remaining on the Seattle schedule.

"I can't score at home," moans the scrappy Stankiewicz, who has collected 12 of his 17 goals on the road. And of those 12, six have been picked up at Memorial Arena.

It was back in January that the Totems, unable to win a game at Memorial Arena for almost two years, rolled into town on the weary end of a long road trip. They promptly smashed the arena jinx by whipping Cougars 8-2, and Eddie contributed two goals to the victory parade.

Totems made it two for the season before about 2,600 fans Friday night and once again the bustling little winger chipped in with two goals. This time his tallies were of the super-important kind. Stankiewicz brought the Totems from behind in the third period, firing the tying and winning goals to spark a 5-3 Seattle victory.

Last Totem Goal Fired in Empty Net

Tom McVie pushed home the final Totem marker in the dying seconds after the Cougars had lifted goalie Marcel Pelletier for an extra attacker. McVie got a clean break for a gift goal when a Cougar shot bounced into centre ice off Seattle defenceman Les Hunt.

But it was the Stankiewicz shot that kept the Cats from stepping onto the threshold of a playoff spot. Six points ahead of Edmonton Flyers with a game in hand, the Cats learned that the Flyers had dropped a 5-4 overtime decision to Spokane Comets when they started the third period in a 2-2 deadlock.

WRECKED PARTY
Barrie Ross, finishing off a play with Doug Macauley and Bill Saunders, sent the Cats into a 3-2 lead at 7:17 of the final session and it appeared that the Cougars might just about clinch the league's last playoff position. Then Eddie stepped in to wreck the party.

With five games remaining on their schedule, compared to four for Edmonton, the Cats can make it by picking up a win and a tie, even if Flyers win all their remaining games. They continue on the point trail at Portland Sunday and return home for a head-on clash with Edmonton Tuesday night.

Scoring winning goals is nothing new for Stankiewicz.

Vikettes 10 Points Behind

Friday evening was a good time for Sunsets to glow, and the lower mainland team today boasts a 10-point cushion in the team's duel with Victoria College-Vikettes for the B.C. junior girls' basketball championship.

Sunsets won the first game of the total-point series 33-23 at Mount View High. Second game will be played tonight.

Barbara Jellett of Sunset and Heather Ingles of the Vikettes tied for scoring honors with seven points each, but the mainlander's score was solidly bolstered by the six-point tallies of Stephens and Wint.

The collegians also found themselves without their usual facility from the foul line, missing on more free shots than they made.

Scorers:
Sunset: Chirkoosh 2, Ewen 4, Jellett 7, McLeod 3, Stephens 6, Washington 3, Wint 3. Total 35.
Vikettes: Castillo 4, Ingles 7, Wadman 2, Wilson 3, Worboys 3. Total 23.

Baseball Fatality

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Bob Adams, 20-year-old sophomore pitcher on the Ohio University baseball team, died Friday night in University Hospital 10 days after being hit on the right temple by a batted ball.

against the Flyers by giving the Comets a 5-4 overtime win Friday night before a Western Hockey League crowd of 2,600.

Johnson's goal, his 31st, came at 7:45 of the extra period.

This was the eighth and final meeting of the regular schedule between the two clubs and Spokane has won all the games.

Flyers, fighting for a playoff berth, have four games left in the schedule and trail sixth-place Victoria by six points.

Vancouver's campaign to hold third place bogged down a little as Portland Buckaroos came from behind to tie the Canucks 3-3 in another overtime game Friday.

The result, coupled with Seattle's 5-3 victory over Victoria, left Vancouver with only a two-point hold on third place over the Totems.

Tom Thurlby's second goal of the season—and the second against Vancouver—gave Portland its draw.

A tough course, a tough field...

That's the picture, and picking a medallist from a record entry of 181 golfers set to tee off Sunday in the annual Times Vancouver Island Open and Handicap Golf Championships appears to be a task as difficult as the Gorge Vale course and the field.

It's anyone's medal. Eight professionals, a half-dozen former winners including defending champion Art Donaldson, and the cream of the Island's top amateur shotsmiths are entered. The medal could wind up in the possession of any one of the 37 golfers stepping into the event with handicaps of five or less.

The qualifying scramble, however, is only the start. After that, it's match play with rounds at Uplands April 2, Victoria Club April 9, Royal Colwood April 16, Gorge Vale April 23, and then the 36-hole finals at Uplands on April 30.

REWARDS AMPLE

The coveted award is The Daily Times Trophy. With it goes an exclusive champion's blazer in addition to the regular prize valued at $100. For the golfers hoping to make good use of strokes, the handicap division's main reward is the Hugh Francis Trophy and the accompanying wrist watch.

Only 32 of the 181 swingers can qualify for the open scramble. Another 32 fill the starting spots in the handicap run.

The only reward for those that don't make it is consolation in the fact they gave it a good try. Or, perhaps, a hidden-hole prize.

UP-ISLAND THREAT

Donaldson and Ron MacLeod, last year's finalists, head the pro entry. The play-for-pay list also includes Cowichan's Mel Evans, 1958 winner Laurie Carroll, Mel Carlow, Laurie Chappell, Norm Boden and Bill Court.

Other former winners set to swing again in the Island's most popular tournament are Bill Wakeham, Joe Briggs and Laurie Kerr.

Once again, all golfers are reminded that they must be on time. Late starters will be disqualified without consideration.

And there's no need for early starters to worry about waking the missus or missing breakfast. Gorge Vale caterer Vern Ferguson will be on hand at 6:30 a.m. to serve up ham and eggs and coffee.

So if that's all settled, the only thing left to do now is to wait for the starter to call your name.

Golf Body Names New Secretary

President John Carlow of Victoria announced Friday that the B.C. Golf Association has named T. Ewart Blossom as its new secretary.

Blossom, a Vancouver investment dealer and a keen golfer, succeeds Alan Campbell, who resigned earlier this year.

Leafs to Stick By Young Goalie

(From Times News Service)
Cesare Maniago, the rookie from Trail who humbled Detroit in the opener of the Stanley Cup semifinal, is expected to be in the nets for Toronto tonight when the Red Wings and Maple Leafs meet in Maple Leaf Gardens.

The best-of-seven set then switches to Detroit for Sunday and Tuesday.

Maniago's appearance means that Vezina trophy-winning Johnny Bower will sit out. The 36-year-old, 40-year-old netminder took part in a strenuous 90-minute drill Friday and declared, "My leg feels pretty good. I guess I could go if I had to."

He has been out for two weeks with a pulled muscle in his left leg.

Meanwhile, Detroit boss Sid Abel said that "Terry Sawchuk will be in goal for us, and Vic Stasiuk will be back on the line with Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio."

He added that Stasiuk's damaged right knee was merely strained in the opener, won by Toronto, 3-2, in overtime. "We lifted him because we didn't want to lose his services for the entire series at this stage."

There was no rest today for Montreal Canadiens, called to a practice that preceded by only a few hours the long train ride to Chicago where the Montrealers and Black Hawks resume their Stanley Cup semi-final Sunday night.

It was the second workout in as many days following Thursday's 4-3 setback at the hands of the Hawks. The Chicago win evened the best-of-seven series 1-1. Canadiens won the opener Tuesday 6-2.

It Was Black Friday For Canadian Curlers

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—The Scottish team skipped by Willie McIntosh, defeated the Canadians 15-4 Friday to post the most one-sided score in Scotch Cup curling history. Earlier the United States team from Seattle scored a startling 13-6 win over Canada.

The losses meant Canada lost its opportunity to clinch its third-straight world curling title and forced a three-way playoff among the teams.

Canada meets the U.S. team, skipped by Dr. Frank Creaklock today at Perth and the winner of that game faces Scotland for the title at Edinburgh, March 30.

"The boys and myself just couldn't get onto the ice," Canadian skip Hec Gervais of Edmonton said. "I missed wide open takeout shots. In fact we couldn't get the weight at all."

Canada led Scotland 3-2 going into the fifth end. Then the Scots scored two on the fifth end, one on the sixth and five on the seventh. Play stopped after 11 ends with the score at 15-4.

In the morning match against the U.S., Canada failed to hold a 5-1 lead after four ends. The U.S. team scored on the next five ends.

Infield Power May Lift Birds to Pennant Perch

SOLLY HEMUS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals surprised the baseball world last year when they finished third. It wouldn't be surprising this year if they went all the way and won the National League pennant.

Solly Hemus, in his third season as manager of the Cardinals, thinks they can do it if they come up with a little more outfield and catching power and a left-handed relief pitcher.

Those are the department's the Cards were short in last year when they jumped from seventh to third place.

"We figure to be stronger—much stronger—than last season," said Hemus. "We have a fine all-around infield, young and strong pitching and plenty of outfielders."

The trouble with the outfielders is that they fall into two categories—those who can hit but are weak in the field and those who can field but can't hit.

"My big problem is to come up with a combination of three who can do the job both in the field and at plate," explained Hemus. "We have plenty of candidates and I'm hopeful they can do the job."

If they do not, Hemus does not think the Cardinals' cause is lost.

"Our infield," he predicted hopefully, "might be able to supply all the power we'll need. Then I can concentrate on defence in the outfield."

His infield is set with Bill White at first, Julian Javier at second, Daryl Spencer at short and Ken Boyer at third. Boyer hit .302 last season with 32 homers and 97 runs batted in. White hit .283 with 16 homers and 79 RBIs.

"Between them they should bat in 200 runs, hit around 60 homers and both hit above .300," Hemus said.

LEARNED TO BUNT

The Cards started to move last year when they obtained Javier from the Pittsburgh Pirates farm organization for southpaw pitcher Wilmer Mizell and installed him at second base. He's a brilliant glove man and while he batted only .237 last season, Hemus thinks he can hit between .270 and .300 this year "because he has learned to bunt."

For infield reserves there are Red Schoendienst, who has won a utility role after being given his free agency by the Braves; Alex Grammas and George Crowe.

Don Landrum, up from Buffalo where he hit .292 with 13 home runs and 75 RBIs, may be the answer to the outfield situation. If he can do the job in centrefield and if he can hit he will beat out another good glove man but weak hitter, Curt Flood.

STAN MUST HIT

Stan Musial will see a lot of action in left field, but he will have to hit to hold the job because of his defensive shortcomings. Joe Cunningham is another outfielder who can hit but leaves a lot to be desired defensively. Also in that category are Bob Nieman and Walt Morin.

There's enough hitting among them, but whether it will be enough to make up for their fielding lapses is doubtful.

Two rookies, Jim Hickman, whose high mark last season was .323 at Tulsa and Charley James, .370 at Charleston, have a chance to stick.

Hal Smith, a fine receiver with a light bat, probably will be the No. 1 catcher although rookie Tim McCarver, who hit .347 at Memphis, has a chance to win the job.

Starting pitchers will be Ernie Broglio (21-9); Larry Jackson (18-13); Bob Miller (4-3); Curt Simmons (7-4) and Ray Sadecki (9-9) with Lindy McDaniel (12-4) the king of the bullpen.

MILLER MAY BE KEY

Two rookies, Mel Nelson, a 13-game winner at Spokane, and Clint Stark, who won 12 at Tulsa, are candidates for the left-handed relief pitching vacancy.

Miller may be the key to the St. Louis pitching fortunes. Only 22, he has the potential to be a 20-game winner.

"He will be the ace of our staff," said Hemus.

If he is and Hemus can come up with a little hitting power from his outfielders and catchers, the Cardinals may fly too high for the other clubs to catch this season.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Don Quinn, 207, St. Paul, knocked out Jerry Buchanan, 217, St. Louis 2.

Bill's Margin Was One Pin

By MICHAEL ROSE

The margin between success and failure is often very slim and in Bill Walker's case it was one pin, the six.

The former city handicap singles champ who sits behind the Times news desk in his working hours, is a member of the Princess Mary team in Tuesday's senior league at Aurora lanes.

This week Walker had most eyes at the alleys turned his way when he ran a string of nine strikes. Then he left the six-pin standing on his 10th toss.

His attempt to convert was also no good and Bill finished with 267 and a week's city-high series of 643.

It may be just pure coincidence but Herb Chandler used the same lanes, seven and Upcoming events on the fivepin scene include Capital Bowladrome's annual Easter marathon series.

Entries from up-island have already been received and the usual Vancouver contingent is also expected to be present.

Two shifts of 20 games each will be rolled Friday, Saturday and Sunday and competitors may enter as many shifts as they desire or have the energy to roll in.

The management anticipates four players to a lane but better experience makes this a hope rather than a prediction.

First prize is $150 with others graded down from that sum. Fifty cents will be awarded for every pin in excess of 1,100 in a block of four and $1 for every pin over 1,200 in each block of four.

Other incentives to high rollers are: $50 for every game with ten consecutive strikes or spares and $1,500 for a perfect game.

John Had to Wait For 5,500th Win

ALBANY, Calif. (AP)—The most successful rider in horse race history, remarkable Johnny Longden, Friday arrived at another milestone when he piloted his 5,500th winner.

The 54-year-old Longden hit the mark on Spring Victory in the third race at Golden Gate. The crowd gave Longden a rousing cheer when the track announcer called out the 5,500 figure.

Longden's boosters have been sweating out the 5,500 figure since March 4. He closed out that Saturday 5,499.

"I waited for days and days to ride number 5,000 and this one was even more elusive," he said.

Spring Victory didn't seem to have a chance as she rounded the turn for home six lengths behind Neck-N-Neck.

But Longden, known as the Pumpkin, really pumped the filly and she got up in the last stride to win by a head.

National Scramble To Nicolaus Silver

AINTREE, Eng. (AP)—Nicolaus Silver today won the 120th running of the Grand National Steeplechase with a strong finishing drive.

Merryman II, last year's winner, was second and O'Malley Point was third.

The winner started at odds of 28-1 in the field of 35. Merryman II was 8-1 and O'Malley Point 100-6.

Scottish Flight, a 100-1 shot, was fourth.

Nicolaus Silver, a nine-year-old gelding in the colors of British owner C. B. Vaughan, was the first grey to win the National since 1868.

The winner was five lengths clear of Merryman II at the finish. O'Malley Point was another neck back in third place.

There was a tremendous last-minute gambling plunge on the Irish-trained Jonjo, which went off favorite at 7-1. Merryman II was second choice at 8-1 and Hunter's Breeze and Siracus were joint third choices at 100-7.

The winning purse was £20,000 ($36,000). Prizes for second, third and fourth were £7,092, $3,301, and $1,509.

It was the richest Grand National in history. Nicolaus Silver was ridden by Harry Beasley.

21 HORSES OUT

Only 14 horses finished the course. The Russian horses Relief and Grifell were among those who found the terrible fences too much for them.

Behind the first four, those who completed the course were Kilmore, Wyndburgh, Jonjo, Badanloch, Team Spirit, Siracus, Mr. What, Ernest, Sabaria and Irish Coffee.

Both Russian horses—small for jumpers by British standards—were out before the first circuit of the course was completed.

Only 17 horses were left when the field came around the first time.

Grifell fell at Beecher's Brook, one of the trickiest jumps on the course. Jockey Vladimir Prakhov remounted and they took the jump on the second try, but for practical purposes they were out of the race.

The other Russian horse, Relief, unsated rider Boris Ponomarenko after making a dubious jump at Valentine's Fence.

With two fences to go, Nicolaus Silver made a determined bid and passed Merryman II. O'Malley Point was making up ground fast.

Burnley Pays Big Fine

LONDON (AP)—Burnley, England's defeated representative in the European soccer cup, was fined $2,800 Friday by the English Football League for playing 10 substitutes in a league game.

It was the heaviest penalty ever slapped on an English League club.

The match was against Chelsea in the English first division March 11—four days before Burnley lost to Hamburg, Germany, in the European cup quarter-finals.

Burnley rested 10 of its 11 regulars and drew with Chelsea 4-4.

Government 'Presses On' Toward Solution of Unemployment Problems

By TONY DICKASON

Finance Minister Donald Fleming said here Friday the Progressive Conservative government is "not satisfied" with results in combatting unemployment.

Government responsibility is being discharged, he said, "but we are not satisfied and intend to press on."

He addressed a political rally of 250 persons in S. J. Willis Junior High School on behalf of Saanich Reeve George Chatterton, PC candidate in the coming Esquimalt-Saanich byelection, who also addressed the gathering.

Both Liberals and CCF had offered no assistance in solving unemployment, but preached "the kind of gloom which shakes confidence in the future," he said.

In a free economy, the finance minister continued, governments should do much in relation to unemployment, "but we can't do it all."

He termed unemployment

"Canada's leading domestic problem."

The federal government had made no attempt to avoid this "difficult" question, he said, but there existed the duty to be realistic about it.

This, he stated, neither the Liberals nor CCF had done.

"They have exaggerated this problem out of all recognition. They have followed it up for political exploitation . . . a political football."

One of the contributing factors to unemployment, he said, was the growth in the labor force, 180,000 in the past year. This was one of the fastest in the world.

And despite unemployment rates, there is also increased employment because of the growing population, "which must not be lost sight of."

105,000 in Winter Works Projects

He estimated there were 105,000 men employed "on the site" of winter works programs, instituted by the federal government three years ago, and the same number off the site.

On two points of wide interest here—his talks with Premier Bennett on Columbia financing and the date of the byelection—Mr. Fleming touched only briefly.

He said he is here "to talk about the power resources of the Columbia" and on the latter point merely mentioned.

"I've heard rumors there may be a byelection in Esquimalt-Saanich some day . . . on a date which may not be too far ahead."

Mr. Fleming said the government had failed in one respect: in not putting its record of achievement before the people.

"We've been busy trying to clean-up a rather sorry mess and have concentrated on serving, rather than on telling what we have done."

On assuming office in June, 1957, the first task, he stated, was to restore dignity to Parliament "over which a ruthless cabinet had ridden, roughshod."

He affirmed the present government had brought back "dignity, effectiveness, vigor and vitality."

"Never more have the rights of the minority been as respected as under this government."

Mr. Fleming brushed off Social Credit and the New Party in their contest for the byelection.

A "splinter" party such as Social Credit would accomplish nothing by Ottawa representation, he said.

"The CCF, or whatever it calls itself at the moment, says leave NORAD and NATO. Is that the kind of record the people of Esquimalt-Saanich want?"

One male voice replied "No." Chairman of the rally was John McIntosh, president of the Victoria Bar Association.

A study of Lake Michigan has shown that about three inches of sediment settle on the lake floor every century.

SHE CAME A-PUFFIN'—SHE'S OUT OF PUFF

Once proud puffer on Vancouver Island rail lines, shown in heyday on right pulling lumber, No. 2141 is now mere hulk of former self, corroding in damp at CNR waterfront yards. Members of railway historical group want to put the old lady into graceful retirement where public can see how smart she can look with a new paint job and polish. Prime mover in campaign is David Wilkie, up on catwalk. Old locomotive has had number plate and bell removed to eliminate action by souvenir hunters. One thing is certain, she'll never be "Coming Round the Mountain" again. (Photos by Bill Halkett and David Wilkie.)

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

By Stuart Keale

In going over some biographical notes on Donald Fleming prior to the Canadian Club meeting Friday, I was intrigued by some of the extra-parliamentary interests and activities of "the Canadian Tom Dewey."

These are the kind of things which tell more about a man than all the sombre statistics of officialdom.

Did you know, for instance, that while still in his teens Donald Fleming breezed through the University of Toronto with the Governor-General's Medal and a host of other scholarships and prizes?

Did you know that, for the past 20 years, he has been president of the Business Men's Noonday Bible Club of Toronto?

Did you know that he is a life-long sports buff?

Perhaps this shouldn't have come as too great a surprise. I first met him in a most unlikely place—the "snake room" of Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Since no smoking is allowed during the NHL games in Toronto, this room is set aside for sports writers and their friends where they can chat about the game between periods, hoist a cup of coffee, and "blow a line."

On the night in question, Canada's finance minister was discussing the merits of Frank Mahovlich with comedians Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster.

Mr. Fleming's athletic pursuits today, the biography noted, are pretty well confined to tennis and "long-distance swimming."

When the appropriate moment presented itself, I mentioned to the minister that the Strait of Juan de Fuca had been conquered by two of his fellow citizens—Marilyn Bell and Cliff Lumsden—and asked him if he would like to have a try.

"Look," the minister grinned, after the meeting, "I'm in deep enough water right now."

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes seemed tickled with the idea. "Would the Times sponsor him?" chuckled His Honor.

There was one aspect of this luncheon which disturbed me greatly: the complete absence of any provincial government member at the head table.

Premier Bennett was invited, accepted, and then withdrew, the morning of the meeting. Ray Williston, who was supposed to introduce Mr. Fleming, also bailed out.

It is all very well for the local government to plead business. To me, it seemed inexcusable social gaffe.

We are, after all, all Canadians, and when an eminent member of the Cabinet comes across the country to do the Government's business it is only fitting that provincial politicians—regardless of party—should turn out to do him honor.

In short, the Socrads ought to mind their manners.

RE-ELECTED president of Saanich Fruit Growers' Association recently, Herbert Bickford will be serving his fifth term. Other officers are vice-president T. Dixon Holloway, and directors, T. G. Mitchell, E. R. Heal, G. McCarthy, G. A. Doney and A. Bean. The association is expecting a better summer this year. Association manager L. F. Dawes said the export of Vancouver Island loganberries to the U.S. is expected to increase by almost 300 per cent. The demand for loganberries is increasing faster than local growers can produce, he said.

TRAFFIC FINES

In Colwood RCMP court Friday:

John Nicoll Page, 1245 Walnut, $15 and $3 costs for speeding over 30.

Stewart and Hudson Ltd., Victoria, $15 and $3 costs for operating a truck with insufficient chains securing load.

Fred Borden, 2907 Seaview, $15 for speeding over 30.

'FATE WORSE THAN DEATH' Can Rail Buffs Save Ol' 2141?

The B.C. Railway Historical Association is trying to raise a little steam to put its drive on the rails to preserve a venerable locomotive.

Old locomotive 2141, one of the last steam locomotives to run in B.C., is quietly rusting into oblivion behind the roundhouse in the CNR's Point Ellice yards.

This 25-member association hates to see Vice-president of the organization, David Wilkie, 595 Leaside, said today the CNR will give the association the locomotive if they just get it away.

The problem is to find the money to move the 140-ton monster and decide where to put it.

For scrap, 2141 would be worth close to $3,000.

It's the last one in B.C. that hasn't been either reduced to hunks of metal or put on public display. Alberni, Nanaimo and Courtenay have locomotives on show, as have many prairie cities.

"I'd like to see her in a park or some other suitable location in Victoria," said Mr. Wilkie, absent-mindedly stroking the 50-year-old veteran of the Island lumber haulage, which last saw service in 1958.

Among suggestions was the "triangle" at intersection of the Island Highway and Trans-Canada Highway on Douglas Street, or in a park.

Persons interested are asked to contact Mr. Wilkie, preferably before the railway makes arrangements to ship 2141 piecemeal to Japan.

WARNING TO SHIPPING

'Sweepers Exercise In Local Waters

The four minesweepers of the RCN Pacific Command's Second Canadian Minesweeping Squadron next week start another in a series of extensive minesweeping exercises planned for this year.

HMC ships Fortune, Miramichi, Cowichan and James Bay will leave Esquimalt harbor at 5:30 a.m. Monday for exercises in waters adjacent to Esquimalt.

Working with them will be the naval auxiliary vessel Clifton, carrying out mine recovery and minefield patrol duties.

The exercise will end on Thursday afternoon.

Noting that minesweepers operating singly or in formations during such exercises have their manoeuvring powers curtailed to a considerable extent, naval authorities have announced to all shipping companies the following information:

BLACK BALL

During daylight operations, the minesweepers will display a black ball at the foremast head and a black ball on the yardarm on the side (or sides) on which it would be dangerous for other vessels to pass.

Night exercises will see the display of round green lights instead of the black balls, and displayed in a similar manner.

Mariners are advised that minesweepers showing these signals should not be approached nearer than 500 yards on either beam, and in no case should another vessel cross astern the sweepers at less than 1,000 yards.

Under no circumstances, it is added, should a ship pass through a formation of minesweepers.

Trying to lift a piece of wood out of a circular saw proved painful for a Hillside man taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday night with a hand cut.

The table saw sliced into the right hand of Lyle G. Kelm, 29, of 2709 Fifth, at the little finger knuckle.

He was stitched up in hospital emergency and discharged.

Winners of the weekly tournament of Victoria All-masters' Duplicate Bridge Club were as follows:

First, Elizabeth Warren and Michael Bruce; second Helen Heeling and Stanley Trickey; third, Ethel Cleworth and George Morgan; fourth, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Artlett.

Results of the junior monthly playoff competition of Victoria unit, American Contract Bridge League, were:

North-south: First, Anne Lewis and Evelyn Groome; second, Lily Roseboom and Kay Clarke; third, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Coffey; fourth, Mr. and Mrs. G. Metcalfe.

East-west: First, Quincy Lewis and F. Groome; second, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Turner; third, C. J. Hunter and Mrs. E. Laidlaw; fourth, Bill and Jean Whittingham.

10,000,000 DAFFODILS TAKE TO AIR

Golden Sea Flows to East

The annual daffodil harvest is going ahead full blast in the lush, balmy fields of Gordon Head, where hundreds of pickers are starting fresh blooms on their way to the eastern Canadian market.

Before Good Friday bulb growers in the area expect to have picked 10,000,000 blossoms.

The first shipments have already been dispatched aboard jet aircraft for cities in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, but the bulk of the shipments—to Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal—will leave here Monday and Tuesday.

Geoff Vantreight, one of the biggest bulb flower growers in the area, expects to sell about 7,000,000 daffodil and tulip blossoms before the Easter season is over. One of his biggest buyers is the Canadian Cancer Society which holds "daffodil days" in several eastern cities.

Mr. Vantreight will have 200 pickers, packers, drivers and office staff on duty on a 24-hour basis this weekend.

But the effort will not end in his huge packing sheds and refrigeration plant in Saanich. Four or five Trans-Canada Air Lines planes will be loaded to capacity for "daffodil flights" and many complicated arrangements have to be made to assure prompt deliveries by train, bus or truck.

An early spring and early Easter this year have helped growers. An early spring and a late Easter would have required the bulbs to be kept in cold storage last fall to delay their growing cycle.

An average picker harvests about 1,200 daffodils an hour. They are tied at a rate of about 3,000 an hour, placed in water overnight and put in waste paper-lined cartons of 420 blooms each for shipment.

'FAIR WAGE POLICY DISREGARDED'

Failure of the Civil Service Commission to recommend wage increases for provincial government employees in the face of the lag behind industry generally, "is a disregard of the fair wage policy," E. P. O'Connor, general secretary, B.C. Government Employees Association, said today.

Government wages are from 5 to 17 per cent behind equivalent rates in similar categories in other occupations, he said.

He was replying to a statement in the legislature by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, who said the only reason civil servants don't get a pay increase is that the Civil Service Commission hadn't recommended one.

"DISTURBING"

Mr. O'Connor termed "disturbing" a statement attributed to Dr. H. M. Morrison, commission chairman, that no increases were recommended because the commission found "no significant" differences between government wages and others.

For example, he said, orderlies and psychiatric aides in government institutions reach a maximum of $286 after five years. In similar positions in general hospitals pay is $324 monthly.

A government truck driver gets $310 a month; average paid-by-outside employers is $340.

These figures were from surveys taken by the BCGEA which followed the same procedure used by the CCC, the basis of the last two general wage increases, in 1957 and 1959.

"Surveys this year showed every bit as much justification for wage increases as those previously accepted by the government," Mr. O'Connor said.

Golden Gavel Winner Chosen Monday Night

The winner of this year's "Golden Gavel" for public speaking will be decided in the council chambers at city hall Monday at 8 p.m.

Eight finalists from public speaking clubs of the Greater Victoria area will participate.

They are Miss Julia Fone, Madrona Toastmasters Club, Sidney; Peter Hunter, Gene Irwin, William McDermott, Frank Stafford and Duncan Stevenson, RCN Branch Officers' Preparatory School; William Peterson, Pacific Meridian Toastmasters Club, and Bruce Holmes, Thunderbird Toastmasters Club.

The contest will be open to the public at no charge.

SAANICH CONSTRUCTION

'Indecision' Could Cost $3 Million

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Saanich council's indecision on rezoning 14 acres of property for light industrial use may result in a loss of $3,000,000 worth of construction in the municipality.

Robert Bentall, vice-president of Dominion Construction Co., said today his company is prepared to spend "several millions of dollars" in a planned light industrial centre south of the Trans-Canada Highway and west of Burnside.

"We would initially spend $3,000,000," he stated.

But he added if the rezoning application, is rejected, the company would have no other alternative but to drop its plan to develop an industrial estate in Saanich and go elsewhere—possibly Esquimalt, the city or Nanaimo.

Council has tabled for further consideration the company's application after discussing the matter with the Advisory Planning Commission last week.

COMPLICATION

Complicating the matter is an earlier council decision allowing the B.C. Electric Co. to use a block of land in the area for light industrial use.

The B.C. Electric property adjoins the company's proposed industrial site.

Mr. Bentall said today he can't understand why some councilors are opposed to his company's plan when they have already approved the industrial development project of the B.C. Electric.

The two basic requirements for an industrial estate are suitable ground conditions and easy highway accesses, he said.

LITTLE PLANNING

"It may surprise many people, but Saanich has little to offer for light industrial development," he said. "That's because there was little planning in the past and areas were not set aside for this purpose."

He said the company's proposed development included warehouses and offices.

"Our project would not be unsightly," he said. "The entire area will be landscaped and buildings will be obliged to have set-backs from roads."

Plaza Theatre Closes Doors End of Month

By PHIL LEE

Victoria has lost another motion picture theatre.

This time it is the Plaza, 808 Yates St. The Odeon-owned house will close down following its Saturday, April 1, operations.

Steve Allen, Plaza manager for the past five years, said almost all the theatre's 17 employees have found new employment. Mr. Allen will remain with the Odeon chain, going to another managerial position, as yet unannounced.

The closing of the Plaza leaves Victoria with only three downtown theatres in operation compared with six only a few years ago. They are the Odeon, the Capitol and the Royal.

Both the Capitol and the Royal are owned by Famous Players of Canada.

Two other Famous Players theatres to be closed within the past few years were the Dominion and the Atlas, both on Yates St.

No reason for the Plaza closing was given. However it is supposed that television, poor pictures and tighter money all contributed.

ANOTHER KOREAN CHILD WINS 'MOTHER' IN CITY

Another Victorian has launched a personal program of international aid—and it only costs $15 a month.

Mrs. Muriel Collier, 2057 Cadboro Bay Road, has become a financial foster parent to six-year-old Lee Jae Sun, thousands of miles away in Korea.

Mrs. Collier is extending a helping hand to orphaned Jae Sun by undertaking to contribute $15 a month for at least one year to her support through the Foster Parents' Plan Inc.

This helps provide her with food, clothing, medical care, education and—very important—translation service so that "foster" mother and "adopted" daughter can correspond.

"We are indeed grateful to Mrs. Collier for giving Jae Sun this wonderful gift of hope and help," G. C. Matthews, FFP executive director, wrote The Times.

"We prayerfully hope that many others who read this will also extend a helping hand to a distressed child."

The non-profit, non-sectarian organization has enabled some 600,000 North Americans to help children in Greece, Italy, South Korea, France, Belgium, Viet Nam and Hong Kong on a personal basis in the past 23 years.

For information write: Foster Parents' Plan, P.O. Box 164, Station B, Montreal.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

William E. Williams, 971 Linkleas, was fined $50 in Oak Bay police court Friday for drinking wine in a public place.

Police said Williams was checked on a street, drinking from a bottle.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Where is the largest tree in the world? L. A. C.

A. By "largest" it is presumed you mean height. There is one giant redwood in California 364 feet high with a 13-foot base diameter.

Q. What was the cost of the White House? P. R. T.

A. It cost about $100,000 to build in the late 1790s and upkeep since has cost about $15,000,000.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or pictures. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Next regular meeting of Esquimalt Council will take place in the municipal hall, Esquimalt Road, Monday evening at 7:30.

John Henry Pollard, Colwood, was sentenced in Colwood RCMP court Friday to two months in jail for assaulting his wife and creating a public disturbance.

Police said Pollard was charged with common-law assault of Dorothy Pollard.

The court imposed concurrent sentences of two months each. Pollard was previously convicted for a similar offence.

Cloudy skies and showers were predicted for tonight by weatherman William Mackie, but there will be some partial clearing Sunday.

Cloud will thicken again late Sunday afternoon and there will be rain again Sunday night or early Monday, he said.

Winds will be southeasterly at 15 to 25 miles per hour overnight, and southwesterly Sunday morning. Temperatures will range between 43 and 55 degrees.

Meeting of the Orange Hall Building Fund Committee will be held in the small hall, Monday evening at 7:30.

On Monday, April 3, a troupe of 40 Indian dancing girls from the Kamloops Residential School will present a program of national dances and songs from many countries at 8 p.m. in Oak Bay Junior High auditorium.

They have twice been performers at the Pacific National Exhibition.

Mrs. Emily V. Harwood, recently retired area superintendent, nursing division, St. John Ambulance Brigade, was honored at the annual banquet of the Victoria branch this week.

Mrs. Harwood was a charter member of the first Victoria nursing division, formed in 1938, and helped to start the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Harwood was presented with a leather purse and a cheque in appreciation of her many years work. The presentation was made by Dr. T. W. A. Gray, former provincial surgeon.

'JUST BEGINNING'

Church Fights Secularization

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Three Anglican bishops in Huron diocese have joined a Toronto bishop in a plea for Anglicans to oppose a move to have the word Christian removed from the Public Schools Act.

In an open letter to "the Christian community" of their 14-county diocese, Rt. Rev. George N. Luxton, Rt. Rev. Harold F. Appleyard, warned that the proposed resolution is the first in a series of steps that sponsors proposed to take. "If this resolution, through lack of attention and action on our part, is allowed to pass, then we shall be in the midst of further steps aimed at the complete secularization of our school system and the elimination of the study of the Bible as the basic book of culture, morality and religion for 95 per cent of our population," the letter stated.

A resolution to be put before the April 6 annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations asks the association to petition the Ontario government to remove the word Christian from the section of the Public Schools Act dealing with teachers' duties.

Women's Group Holds St. Patrick's Fete

GANGES—A successful St. Patrick Day concert under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League brought the sum of $90 to the organizers. Mrs. Kello Wilson, who was in charge of the program, with Mrs. E. Younds and Mrs. B. Marcotte, were more than pleased with the results. It was a varied program, with something to suit everyone.

'New' Bible Praised By Sexton

The Archbishop of B.C., Harold E. Sexton, today had laudatory words about the New Testament translation of the Bible.

The Testament is a compilation of 12 years' work by major Christian bodies in the United Kingdom, excluding Roman Catholics. Said His Grace: "The message of the Bible for those who have ears to hear does not change."

"But it must be conveyed through a language which its readers can understand." In effect, the new translation simplifies, but His Grace said the authorized (King James) version "is one of the supreme achievements of translation and will always be a supreme example of the power and majesty of the English language."

He pointed out that because the language "is a living and growing instrument of communication" and since it has changed enormously in recent years, there had been a need for a new translation. A complete public reading of the New Testament will be held at St. Werburgh's and the neighboring Congregational Church next Tuesday.

It is expected to take six hours. At least 50 readers will be involved.

Victoria Daily Times SAT., MARCH 25, 1961 15

Classically simple is the dress and coat ensemble worn by Mrs. J. G. Cleland. The dress and coat piping are in clear bud green fine wool and the topcoat is in harmonizing green tweed. Dressy flowered chapeau in deep violet and green is a perfect foil for the smooth lines of the ensemble.

Mrs. C. Cameron, left, is wearing a stunning Austrian knit costume in black and stone grey. Beneath the trotter-length coat is a sheath dress with clever braid detail. Her tall white straw cloche is banded in wide taffeta ribbon. Tender green is the shade chosen by Mrs. Douglas Hunter, centre, for her becoming three-piece costume of sheer wool and printed silk. The yellow straw hat, wrapped in tulle and trimmed with a matching rose is a perfect companion for the suit, as the same yellow shade runs through the print of the jacket collar and blouse bodice. Mrs. I. W. Bell, right, a petite model, is wearing a fresh silk print dress and cropped jacket in tones of yellow and tangerine. The portrait collar is femininely flattering and the wide unpressed box pleats are an important part of this season's look. Mrs. Bell's saucy white straw is topped with a fluff of white organza petals.

Easter Elegance

Fine fabrics and beautiful colors are all-important in today's fashion presentations pictured in the attractive Palmer Road garden of Mr. and Mrs. V. Ahier. These are Easter fashions, of course, but they will also see you through many months to come. Ensembles and the costume look dominate this year, with short jackets, three-quarter and full-length topcoats, dresses and two-piece suits. Lightweight knits, which have an ease and fluidity, are most important in the season's natural silhouette. Soft and malleable wools are year-round favorites in our city and this season there are also chiffon weight wools in all the flower garden shades. The pure prettiness and unadulterated chic of the 1961 silhouette can be adapted to everyone's needs and, in this season of color, you'll be right in fashion in any of the glorious flower and leaf shades.

Adele Simpson of New York designed the beautiful three-piece costume worn by Mrs. George Farmer. The short jacket and high rise skirt are in white and Egyptian copper-toned imported wool. The simple sleeveless blouse is fashioned in heavy white linen. Mrs. Farmer has also chosen a twisted straw braid hat, interwoven with silk taffeta ribbon in rich mahogany brown.

A bouquet of prize daffodils adds to the spring look of Mrs. Graeme Scott's Italian knit dress. The pale meringue wool is encircled with many narrow white stripes. A clever Ascot tie trims the neckline and the waist has a natural fitting elasticized line. A "Jackie Kennedy" pillbox in meringue beige is worn on the back of Mrs. Scott's dark hair.

Imported Make-Up Mirrors Good Buy at This Price

By PENNY SAVER

A good make-up mirror is almost a "must" for the woman who wants to be sure of looking her best when she starts off for a day at the office or an afternoon's shopping. Ones I came across this week are most attractive. Dainty floral designs add touches of elegance to fine china base and stand. Large mirror has one side magnifying so that the slightest imperfection will show up at the most fleeting glance! Mirrors sell at $1.19.

Mothers of young babies will want to get in on sale of infants' waterproof pants. These are well-made for comfortable fit and have been reduced from 39 cents each to 33 cents. Pants are all in blue plastic.

Even doing household chores, smart women always manage to have just a hint of glamor about them! Styled with this in mind are turban-type dust caps in easy-to-clean plastic. Perky little turbans are in candy stripes of white and beige with a tiny gilt coin for highlight. They'll keep hair completely dry if used as a shower cap.

Two new items are being introduced by well-known Canadian cosmetic manufacturer at introductory prices. There's a hand and body lotion that is presently selling at 69 cents for a 10-ounce bottle. Normal price will be $1.10.

A new hair conditioning cream rinse that will be sold for $1.25 for 10-ounce bottle is also being introduced at 79 cents. Both have lanolin added.

DEAR ABBY

How Times Do Change!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Where we live, it is the custom for parents to give their children five dollars for every "A" and two dollars for every "B" on their report cards. I am 13 and got two A's and four B's and I didn't get anything. Do you think that is fair?

DEAR GYPPEE: When I went to school, we didn't worry about what we got if we made A's and B's. We worried about what we got if we didn't.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a wonderful man and everyone who knows him admires him for his many fine qualities. But he is making our boys hate him by the way he corrects them. If their shoulders happen to droop at the dinner table, he shouts, "Sit Up!" in such a mean way that it brings tears to their eyes (and mine) and spoils our dinner.

If he would just smile and say, "How about putting those shoulders back?" that is all that would be necessary. How can I get him to realize that he could accomplish the same good with a little different approach?

DEAR "WORRIED": Your husband is probably worried, too—about something else. Husbands come home and bark at their wives and children because they can't take it out on anyone else. Be sympathetic and let him know he can.

THE HOUSE DOCTOR RECOMMENDS "LET'S CLEAR THE FOG"

When the view is blotted out by irritating condensation... don't blame your windows... it's conditions that exist inside your house. Window condensation is caused by moisture in the air cooling on the cool pane. Steamy windows could prove costly to the modern home owner. Six ways to relieve the problem of window condensation: 1. Shut off your furnace humidifier. 2. Keep kitchen exhaust fans running whenever you are cooking. 3. Ventilate your house constantly. 4. Keep your windows clean. 5. Install storm windows.

Remember, call the House Doctor when you have a building problem.

Copied from a Victorian wedding gown is the breath-taker in silk organza worn by Norma Cameron in today's show. Appliques of Guipure lace accent wide fichu-type collar and form sash-like panels on the full hooped skirt that flows back to a chapel train.

Bridal Show in Victoria Debut

Fifty brides-to-be and their mothers looked into the future when they were guests this afternoon at showing of bridal fashions in the Hudson Bay's Douglas Room.

Presentation, first of its kind in Victoria, ran complete gamut of needs of brides and their attendants. There were gowns for the all-important ceremony, trousseau lingerie, going-away ensembles and outfits for the honeymoon trip.

As models stepped out on a stage that depicted the colonnaded interior of a church, ripples of delighted approval were heard.

Slender Norma Cameron was a picture of radiance in a short bridal gown of silk organza that had flower appliques of Guipure lace, each flower centred with a creamy pearl, bordering the sabrina neckline. Molded basque bodice had sleeves in classic lily-point length. Full cloud of a skirt swept back from an apron front to a bustle back, topped with a crisp bow. Beneath the bow, tiers of flimsy organza whispered.

Tiny flowers of Guipure lace edged the chapel-length veil that flared from her Swan Lake coronet of twisted pearls and swathed organza. Colonial bouquet was of lilies of the valley and pink roses.

Her attendants, Susan Mitchell, Brenda Lee, McBeth and Chris Burton were in short, full-skirted gowns of turquoise, pink and bud green organza, flecked with white velvure flowers. Draped taffeta cummerbunds slenderized waists. Gowns had Sabrina necklines and dainty capped sleeves.

Trio wore flowered head-dresses in tone and carried colonial bouquets of toning sweetheart roses.

Show stealer was blonde four-year-old Bonnie Braithwaite. Each time she stepped forth as a flower girl the audience took her to their hearts!

For evenings of dancing Chris Burton chose a Suzy Perette original in lilac. Fragile as a cloud, its draped bodice gave a Grecian effect. Full skirt of chiffon, mounted on taffeta, was posed over its own crinoline. Waist was moulded by a draped and bowed cummerbund.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

To Gain Beauty and Health You Can't Beat Exercise

There is no doubt that exercise can have a wonderful effect on the beauty of a woman as well as on her health. It stirs up circulation and keeps her firm and flexible. It increases her energy and improves her complexion and figure. It also greatly increases her grace.

A beautiful walk and charm of movement nearly always belong to the woman who exercises regularly. Exercise keeps muscles firm and even more than that, improves coordination.

The following exercise is splendid for balance and firms the thighs.

Stand tall. Take a weight, perhaps a heavy book or your iron would do, in your left hand and raise your left arm overhead, arm close to the ear. Keep the arm in this position as you slowly bend your knees to a deep kneebend. Keep the trunk erect. Do not bend forward. Now, straighten the knees and return the left arm to the side. This time take the weight in the right hand, raise the right arm up by the ear and bend the knees. Straighten the knees and return right arm to side. Continue, alternating.

Now, with arms hanging at your sides, again go down into a deep knee bend. Be sure that your trunk does not incline forward and that your movement is balanced and controlled. Straighten the knees to normal position.

Another grace building exercise: Stand erect. Swing your right leg across your body to the left as you swing your left arm across to the right. Now swing, back and forth like the pendulum of a clock. Knees are stiff and trunk and head erect.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Grace" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with the left as you swing your right leg back to the right to Josephine Lowman in care of this paper.

PITY THE PRETTY PRINCESSES

There's a Critical Shortage of Marriageable Princes in Europe

PARIS (NEA)—First it was Baudoin, King of the Belgians, now it's the Duke of Kent. You would think these young men would have a little more consideration for the problems of Europe's other royal families.

The fact is there is a surplus of marriageable daughters of reigning or pretending monarchs and a critical shortage of royal princes.

But Baudoin wed a quiet, virtually unknown member of the Spanish nobility and now the duke, eighth in line for the British throne, is engaged to a pretty member of the landed gentry.

Now the young, and mostly pretty, princesses of Europe can look hopefully only to Harald of Norway, Constantine of Greece, Don Juan of Spain and Simeon of Bulgaria. The first two seem likely to succeed their fathers one day; Don Juan may be the man to restore the monarchy after Franco's death; but Simeon is sure to be nothing but a pretender.

TOO MANY

The surplus on the distaff side includes: France's Anne, 22, and Isabel, 28; Italy's Maria-Gabriella, 21, and Maria-Beatrice, 17; Greece's Sophie, 22, and Irene, 18; Britain's Alexandra of Kent, 24; Holland's Beatrix, 23, and Irene, 21; Spain's Maria del Pilar, 24; Denmark's Margrethe, 21, and Benedicte, 17; and Sweden's Margarethe, 26, and Desiree, 22. Sweden's third princess, 24-year-old Birgitta, will marry Prince Georg of Hohenzollern this June.

Beatrix is one of two of this galaxy who presumably one day will reign as queen.

Strangely enough, the choice of a suitable husband for her is somewhat less limited. There is nothing in the Dutch Constitution to prevent her marrying a commoner, provided Parliament ratified her choice.

It is rumored that Trix is in love with a penniless young commoner, a lawyer's son.

IMPORTANT ROLE

While Alexandra has practically no chance of getting to the British throne (being ninth in succession) she nevertheless now plays an important role as stand-in for her cousin, Elizabeth II, at home and abroad. Harald of Norway would be an acceptable husband. But again it is rumored that Alexandra is in love with Lord O'Neill, an

DESIREE

BEATRIX

A sampling of the surplus

Irish squire who apparently is not at all attracted by the prospect of life at the English court.

The brief romance of Sweden's Margarethe with a Britisher, Robin Douglas-Home, whom she met while studying in London, was short-lived. Home played the piano and sang in a nightclub. Her mother, Princess Sybilla, could not bear the thought of such a misalliance and decided it was time her daughter returned to Stockholm.

For Desiree of Sweden, her Prince Charming could well be young Constantine. The trouble is that he is said to be head over ears in love with a Greek starlet.

As for Margrethe of Denmark, she can only marry a prince of royal blood. The Constitution demands it. She, too, will be queen one day.

The two French princesses, now that the succession to the problematic French throne is assured by a son just born to their brother, the Dauphin Henri of France, can marry practically anyone, provided he is a Catholic. Last summer Anne met dashing Simeon of Bulgaria and the two young people were much attracted to each other. But the Vatican frowned on the idyll. Simeon is a member of the Greek orthodox Church.

OUT IN COLD

Pretty, vivacious Sophie of Greece, it seems, is crying her eyes out and threatening to enter a convent because she had picked out Harald as a husband. She recently learned that he has long been infatuated with the pretty daughter of a wealthy Oslo businessman. King Olaf looks upon this friendship with much disfavor because the Constitution forbids the hereditary prince from marrying a commoner.

Of the two Italian beauties, Maria-Gabriella (Lella) also had been mentioned as a possible wife for Edward of Kent. The most desirable fiancée, of course, would be handsome Don Juan.

Visits Parents

Miss Jill Denny has been spending the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Denny, at their home on Beach Drive. She returns to the University of Washington on Sunday. Miss Denny is now in her final year of interior design.

Creighton-Nicholson Vows This Afternoon

A quiet family wedding held this afternoon in St. Luke's Anglican Church at Cedar Hill united Miss Julia Judy Margaret Kinghorn Nicholson and Hugh Alexander Creighton.

Bride, who entered the church on the arm of her brother, A. R. Nicholson, wore a classic gown in Norman Hartnell design, made in London, England. Of heavy duchess delustrated satin, it was fashioned with oval neckline and fitted bodice extending into a princess-line torso. The sleeves were three-quarter length, while the wide, bell-shaped skirt was afternoon length.

A Swiss cloche of ivory petals and a bouquet of gardenias completed the bride's ensemble. Her accessories were white and her only jewelry, an opal necklace, gift from the groom.

SPRING FLOWERS

Arrangements of narcissi, daffodils and plum blossoms decorated the church as Canon Frederic Pike officiated. Eric Edwards played organ music.

Bride is daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. F. Nicholson and granddaughter of Mrs. Frank D. Nicholson, Victoria, while Mr. Creighton is son of Mrs. H. Creighton, 1050 Richardson Street, and the late Mr. Creighton.

Groom was attended by his twin brother, Colin Creighton, while ushers were Fraser Nicholson, Vancouver, and Barry Wharf.

Seven-year-old Donna Nicholson and Allison Nicholson, five, were bridesmaids for their aunt. They wore imported English frocks of wool and silk mixture in ivory tone. Blue and pink embroidery smocked the bodices and Peter Pan collars and tiny wreaths of blue and pink encircled their heads. The same two colors were featured in hyacinths in their bouquets.

Following the ceremony, guests were received in the Monterey Avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Nicholson. Spring flowers decorated the rooms and a three-tier wedding cake was arranged with silver candelabra on the bride's table.

Mrs. Creighton, groom's mother, received guests in a beige sheath dress and accessories. Mrs. Nicholson wore navy with white accessories.

Proposing the bridal toast was Brian Tobin.

Leaving on a honeymoon to a secret destination, the new Mrs. Creighton donned a York-shire tweed suit in turquoise and coral. This she complemented with a turquoise ribbon hat and bone accessories.

Couple plan to make their home at 4997 Prospect Lake Road, Royal Oak.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Right Temp. for Seedlings Supplied at Little Cost

By JACK BEASTALL

The age-old problem of finding space for all the seedlings, once they are pricked out to a two-inch spacing in boxes, is beginning to plague local gardeners.

At this time of year warmth and good light are essential for seedlings, and most homes have only sufficient basement windows to provide space for about one-fifth of the seedlings the gardener has on hand.

A small greenhouse solves the problem for some gardeners, but this area is soon filled because the greenhouse owner will start more seeds than the basement gardener would attempt.

Cold frames are the answer whether a greenhouse is available or not, and it is much easier to convert a cold frame into a heated frame than it is to provide a growing temperature in a greenhouse that is without a heating system.

The frame can be of the simplest construction since it is purely a temporary structure. If it can be designed to pack down and store away so much the better.

Sufficient heat to keep seedlings growing healthily can be supplied by using the old-fashioned kerosene table, or reading, lamps. These can be obtained very cheaply, and whether ornamental or ugly matters little as long as they provide heat.

These lamps have wicks of various widths, usually ranging from one-half inch width to three times that width.

For a cold frame large enough to take a reasonable number of boxes or flats the widest wick is best, although two lamps, with narrower wicks will serve the same purpose and may be more desirable if the frame is long and narrow.

I have a double sided frame five feet by twelve feet and two feet high at the centre which can be held at a satisfactory temperature for growing seedlings with one lamp having a one-inch wick.

This frame is covered with sheets of three play on frosty nights.

MINIMUM 45

Another frame, ten by five feet and three feet deep at the high side, is filled with potted zonal and Martha Washington pelargoniums which need a minimum temperature of 45 degrees. This is maintained with one lamp having a one-and-one-half inch wick, a cover of sacks being used when the outside temperature drops to around 35 degrees.

Holes are dug in which to place the lamps so that the heat is radiated from the glasses at soil level, and a brick in the bottom of each hole keeps the lamps out of any seepage water.

Both seedlings and plants, like babies, must have their sleep, but with plants in all stages of growth the number of hours of darkness is important to their development. This poses a small problem because the lamps give out light as well as heat.

I have tried painting the lamp glasses, but it is difficult to find a paint which will adhere satisfactorily to glass, be unaffected by the heat, and not produce noxious fumes which damage the plants.

REDUCE LIGHT

Since it requires light of fairly high intensity to affect plant growth, a small amount of light leakage or reflection can be tolerated.

To reduce the amount of light in the frame is the reason for using wide wicks to give sufficient heat from a very low flame. It is better to use two lamps each with the flame below the metal cap or spreader, than to use one lamp with the flame turned high.

At present I am using one-gallon cans with the tops and bottoms removed to act as shades. These are supported on bricks placed in the lamp holes so that the lower edge is about at soil level. There is still ample space for the cold air to flow into the lamp hole, and the cans themselves pick up considerable heat and act as radiators in addition to the flow of hot air from the top.

A piece of metal is arranged as high as possible over each lamp to protect woodwork or frame covers from direct heat which could cause a fire or crack the glasses. This metal also accumulates heat and acts as a radiator.

The lamp burners must be kept as clean as possible, the carbon being removed from the wicks every morning, and the carbon which forms on the wick holders at least once a week. The lamps are wiped all over with a clean cloth after filling to remove any traces of kerosene.

When the lamps are not burning the wicks should be turned down below the top of the wick holder so that kerosene does not creep from the wick over the outside of the burner parts. When this happens, or when spilled kerosene is not wiped off, dense fumes are given off and the kerosene evaporates.

There is always a slight smell of kerosene fumes with the lamps, even with the cleanest of lamps, but with adequate ventilation during the day there are no ill effects noticeable on the plants.

TOXIC FUMES

The greatest source of danger is a form of sulphur which is the product of any flame burning in air. In this particular form the sulphur unites readily with water to give a solution that is toxic to plants.

I have not as yet experienced any trouble from this source, but I believe it pays to keep the frames on the dry side, applying water when needed directly to the pots or boxes with the minimum of splashing or spilling.

Should excess moisture collect in a frame, as indicated by water droplets on the inside of the glass covers, the covers should be turned over so that the dry sides are over the plants, and the frame well ventilated as soon as possible to drive out the moist air.

While two or three reading lamps will prevent frost damage to seedlings in a small greenhouse, they are not large enough to maintain a growing temperature. For this purpose the portable kerosene heaters are better.

As to operating costs, the two cold frame lamps and another in a seed propagator consume one gallon of kerosene in from eight to ten days, or about four cents a day for three lamps.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Plan for hanging baskets by growing the needed plants in three-inch pots.

Tuberous begonias which have been started into growth and now have roots, can be carefully planted into four-inch pots of humus-filled soil. Pot up all cuttings as soon as roots have formed, especially chrysanthemums, to avoid check in growth.

On a warm day, lift and divide waterlilies if crowded. Use old cow manure, compost and bonemeal when replanting.

In well-drained soils, the first batch of gladioli can be planted; also montbretias.

Cuttings of new growths from overwintered plants of yellow and white marguerites (Chrysanthemum frutescens) may still be taken and rooted indoors the same as chrysanthemums.

Indoors, sow seed of celery, and the annual cooking herbs—savory, marjoram, basil. Plant a few early potatoes if soil is draining well.

Plant perennial herbs—sage, thyme, mint, lemon balm. Prepare bed for asparagus planting later. Dig in plenty of rotted manure.

ISLAND ROUNDUP

Sea Speedster Gets Big Fine

SIDNEY — Leonard William Rawluk, Vancouver, who circled Mt. Sidney last Sept. 10 near Prevost Island with a power boat, was found guilty in police court here of dangerous navigation and was fined $100.

According to evidence Rawluk overtook the ferry, ran alongside with only 40 feet of clearance, then cut across the ferry's bow with only 70 feet of clearance.

He returned around the stern of the vessel and at one time, according to Capt. Thomas Parkinson and Quartermaster Archie McLean, was close enough for them to have jumped into the smaller craft. Rawluk said he was from 800 to 1,000 yards ahead when he crossed the ferry's bow. He said he and a friend were expecting another man from the mainland, and were looking for him among the passengers visible on the Sidney.

DUNCAN—RCMP here are considering taking action against people who buy food vouchers from transients. Welfare workers are doing their best to assist as many transients as possible, police said, but some of the transients are selling the vouchers in order to buy beer.

LAKE COWICHAN—United Organizations of Lake Cowichan has launched a fund-raising campaign to send its championship drama club to the Dominion Drama Festival in Montreal in May.

On March 11 Lake Cowichan Drama Club was declared winner of the B.C. Regional Drama Festival for its presentation of "The Three Cuckolds," and Adrian Peckhold, who plays the male lead, was named best actor.

Mrs. Yvonne Green, director, said at a meeting of United Organizations that a minimum of $3,000 will be required to take the club's cast of 10, crew of three, and its own set to the dominion finals.

She said the club expects certain grants, and its plans to stage the show at Island points to raise funds, but is going to need at least $1,000 more.

Logger Fined for Waiter Assault

NANAIMO — Albert Furness, Campbell River logging operator, was fined $75 in police court here Friday when he pleaded guilty to assaulting waiter Patrick Canning in the Malaspina Hotel bar, Feb. 23.

Defence counsel—Hugh Heath said Canning refused to serve Furness, the latter thought he was being discriminated against because he was wearing his working clothes. Magistrate Lionel Beevor.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. (1) My raspberry canes are quite tall, over six feet, and young shoots coming all over from the bottom. Can I still trim back the tops? Do I leave the young shoots growing? Can I cover young shoots with grass cuttings?

(2) What are the best strawberries to plant to produce berries this summer?

(3) When should dahlias be planted? Mrs. J. E. T., Victoria. A. (1) Raspberry canes may be topped now to a height of about five-and-one-half feet. The young shoots, if coming through the soil, are the new canes for next year's crop. These may be reduced in number to the six strongest to a plant. Grass cuttings may be spread on the soil around the plants, but any growths which are covered will be damaged.

(2) Strawberries are not allowed to fruit the first season in order to build a strong plant for future years. Any strawberries planted now will have all flowers removed this season and give the first fruit next year.

(3) Unsprouted dahlia tubers are planted about eight inches deep around mid-April so as not to appear above ground before the last spring frosts. Sprouted tubers are set out after last frost, around mid-May.

AT HUSBAND'S NEGLIGENCE TRIAL

Wife Defends Driving

Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth Stewart, wife of a Sooke man charged with criminal negligence in a double road death Oct. 21, said his driving before the accident was "all right."

She told the Assize Court here that William John Stewart, 47, Kemp Lake Road, was driving between 35 and 40 mph before the accident.

He is charged specifically with the death of Jack Cameron, killed with his brother Tom in the Dewdney Flats section of the Sooke Highway when caught between a tow truck and a car.

Stewart ploughed into the tow truck.

Her husband had some beer between 2:30 p.m. Oct. 20 and the time of the accident, about 1:30 a.m. He had been to bed about three hours, getting up at 12:30 a.m., she said.

Both she and her husband told of being blinded by lights of an oncoming car.

"I put on the brakes but was too close, and we hit," said the accused.

Final arguments and charge to the jury is due Monday.

Columbia treaty signed with the U.S.

"Generous compensation" to be paid by Ottawa to B.C. residents whose homes and property will be affected by flooding.

Payment by Ottawa to B.C. of the entire U.S. flood control benefit of $64,000,000 to be kept for use only to offset "economic loss to the province resulting from flooding."

Payment by Ottawa of $4,000,000 worth of pre-engineering costs already spent by B.C. some on studies by the B.C. Energy Board.

Ownership of the entire works to be transferred from Ottawa to B.C. without charge either within 50 years or when they are fully paid for.

RESPONSIBILITY

B.C. to undertake full financial responsibility for construction of all works.

Ottawa to be allowed full access to all engineering data and approval of all contracts, as is now done for Trans-Canada Highways projects.

Guarantee by Ottawa "by appropriate financial measures" that the net cost of Columbia power delivered to the Vancouver area will not exceed 4.25 mills.

Arrangements for sale of surplus Columbia power to the U.S. at a price not lower than 4.25 mills per kilowatt-hour.

Mr. Bennett told the legislature the talks with Mr. Fleming were all "in the tentative stage."

"I do not expect at this time we will come to any formal and definite agreement," said the premier.

But the talks are progressing "in the very best spirit possible."

Earlier, Mr. Fleming told reporters the federal government was repeating its offer of last December to "invest" one half of the cost of the dams only on a self-liquidating repayment basis.

MORE STUDY

Later Friday, Finance Minister Fleming said further study is required before he can comment on Premier Bennett's take-it-or-leave-it proposal on financing the Columbia project.

They meet again tonight at a Government House dinner, and further talks are possible before Mr. Fleming returns to Ottawa at noon Sunday.

The premier said the B.C. government is sticking to its prior rejection of the federal financing offer made last Dec. 6. This was to "invest" $172,000,000 in part of the project with repayment assured when it started to make a profit.

TWO MEETINGS

Mr. Bennett submitted details of his two proposals to Mr. Fleming and they discussed them, along with the possibility of some joint form of financing, at two meetings Friday.

Mr. Fleming said afterwards: "There was a very thorough and comprehensive discussion of all aspects of the financial proposals."

He added: "I wouldn't wish to make any specific comment."

No hard and fast stand had been taken, he said.

Further study of specific points of information will be necessary, said Mr. Fleming.

"Premier Bennett indicated quite clearly to me," he added, "it is the common wish of both governments to facilitate in every way possible the earliest possible commencement of the project."

It would be premature, he said, to say either side had rejected any proposals.

Mr. Fleming said no date had been set for further discussions after this weekend. He did not know how or when they might take place.

LISBON (Reuters)—Premier Antonio Salazar's government announced Friday night it would seek extradition of the "murderers" of an officer of the Portuguese cruise liner Santa Maria when she was seized in January.

The band of men who took the ship over were granted political asylum in Brazil last month.

An Information Ministry statement named 11 Portuguese, six Spaniards, a Venezuelan and six of unspecified nationality who allegedly took part in the seizure.

The statement said 17-year-old Spanish student Vitor Jose Velo Perez had almost certainly fired the shot which killed Santa Maria third officer Nascimento Costa.

'Won't Face Enemy With Inferior Arms'

REGINA (CP)—Defence Minister Harkness said Friday night it is the policy of the government that Canadian forces should not be required to face a potential enemy with inferior weapons.

But he added that no decision will be taken on acquisition of nuclear warheads "until a satisfactory agreement on joint control of such warheads" has been worked out with the United States.

"If and when nuclear weapons are acquired by the Canadian forces, these weapons will not be used except as the Canadian government decides and in a manner approved by the Canadian government," Mr. Harkness said in an address to the United Services Institute of Regina.

He said the Bomarc jet-aircraft missile, Honest John artillery rocket and CF-104 low-level jet bomber have a nuclear capability "and they do not achieve their full potential without a nuclear warhead."

Mr. Harkness reiterated that the government has no intention of having nuclear weapons manufactured in Canada or of acquiring any kind of strategic nuclear weapon—such as a long-range missile or heavy bomber.

Mr. Harkness warned the Soviet Union was developing a "stand-off" bomber which would be able to fire nuclear missiles 1,000 miles to hit its target in the next two years.

New Frontier Hits Palm Beach

PALM BEACH—The New Frontier, southern extension, has pushed its borders down to this golden nest by the sea, long the home of the plush, the posh, the upholstered, the platinum-plated pioneer.

A skinny

Island, about as long as Manhattan, Palm Beach has suddenly discovered that in history's eyes it is bounded on the north by the Kennedy family's winter seat, and on the south by the former training headquarters of one Ingemar Johansson.

I'm not so sure how long the former Johansson encampment will remain a place of pilgrimage, but it is certain that the Kennedy villa, owned by the president's father, may one day become a museum of American memories of the Sixties. Certainly Palm Beach gained a sightseeing attraction, in the first quarter of 1961, which will last to infinity.

The Kennedy house sits on the northern end of North County Road facing Monterey St. Unfortunately for sightseers, it is one of a handful of homes sandwiched between the road and the sea, making little of it visible from the road. Just three minutes away, and similarly placed, is the mansion of Earl E. T. Smith, who had been tapped as Kennedy's ambassador to Switzerland until Swiss pressure forced Smith to have his name withdrawn. He was formerly Ambassador to Cuba under Batista.

All that can be seen of the Kennedy house, where the president's father and mother have passed winter months for many years, is the imposing brown front door with its maroon rings and hinges, the Australian pines and the palms entwined with philodendron screening the place from the road.

In this remote winter house the 35th president of the U.S. chose almost all his cabinet members, announcing their appointments to the nation from the front door. The Palm Beach Country Club, where Kennedy plays golf, is just down the pike, and his church, St. Edward's, is a mile or so towards the centre of Palm Beach.

Johansson's county seat was spread over two motels far south along this posh preserve, past millions of dollars of winter estates and manicured clubs. Half of his entourage, including his fiancée, Birgit Lundgren, stayed at Seabreeze, the Quality Court Motel owned by Maury Frank.

when the family house was closed.) Johansson was bedded down at night in the presidential suite of the Holiday Inn owned by Mrs. Frank, a few yards away.

In between the Kennedy's house and the Johansson headquarters, Palm Beach provides an assortment of splendours that have been dazzling cultured customers since 1896 when Henry Flagler sent the first train into the resort. It carried Cornelius Vanderbilt, Harry Payne Whitney and others of the social band that had been spending their summers at Newport.

This winter, 65 years later, Eastern Airlines brought in its first jet, running down from New York in two hours and a half. Its daily run now maintains the essence of the resort, at least in first class where champagne with strawberries is poured, and served with morsels of crabmeat and shrimp and trays of delicate sandwiches that would hold their own at a Palm Beach garden party.

Eastern's decision to bring jets to Palm Beach was influenced by the results of the election and it commenced service before Christmas. Anticipating considerable traffic between Washington and Palm Beach it laid on prop-jet flights between those two cities the day before the inauguration.

***

Aside from the presidential presence now and then, Palm Beach can also offer a new high society shopping centre called Royal Poinciana Plaza, where strollers, anesthetized by clouds of orange blossoms from the rows of citrus trees, can stroll among the southern branches of Fifth Avenue's best shops.

At F. A. O. Schwartz, the Tiffany of toys, you can buy a larger-than-life mule (stuffed) for $200. Abercrombie and Fitch, the army and navy store of the haute monde, will sell you a sailboat or a shooting jacket; and Hattie Carnegie is pushing white mink sports coats (at $950) to ward off the chill of the air conditioning. Nobody has to eat the local food since a branch of Schrafft's, the east's temple of the watercress sandwiches, has opened here too.

The shopping centre includes a beautiful new theatre and a nightclub called the Celebrity Room, which is decorated with elaborate Venetian chandeliers and ceiling mural depicting world famed celebrities in Roman togas looking down on the customers. Among them are Bing Crosby, Sinatra, Churchill, Eisenhower, and the local boy, JFK. Nobody has painted Johansson's picture on the ceiling as yet, although Patterson did a handy job of engraving it on the floor at Miami.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Victoria delegates to the provincial biennial convention of the Canadian Legion in Westminster, May 20 to 24, have been instructed to co-operate with the Zone Council of Victoria in its efforts to attract the 1963 provincial convention to Victoria.

Delegates from the Britannia Branch of the Legion attending the convention will be K. L. Zeal, J. C. Davies, S. J. Mayzes, A. W. Duncan, R. B. Shaw, G. J. Corp, W. J. Kane, E. Jones, W. G. Stone, W. C. Hudson.

H. L. Friske was this week re-elected Victorian district zone commander.

Ian Diment, 2675 Windsor, was fined $20 and $3.50 costs when he appeared in Oak Bay police court Friday charged with an offence under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

MENTAL CENTRE

Staff Vs. Buildings Plea Made
Emphasis on staff and treatment rather than large buildings was urged for Victoria's new mental health centre Friday.

Dave Barrett (CCF-Dewdney) asked Health Minister Eric Martin in the legislature if such prospects could go ahead on the principle of decentralization.

Mr. Martin has promised a new mental health centre for the Victoria area. It is expected the centre will be built this year on the grounds of Colquitz.

"I hope you will focus money on staff for treatment purposes rather than large buildings," said Mr. Barrett.

George Hobbs (CCF-Revelstoke) said he was shocked when he visited Colquitz.

"It was quite a shock to see a fellow creature locked up in a cage like an animal," he said.

DROWSY DRIVERS

Cure Cold, Crash Car, Club Warns
With the "spring cold" season at hand, the Victoria Auto Club has issued a warning about the possible dangers of combining driving with use of anti-histamines and decongestants.

Coupled with the warning against these "cold relief" preparations was an urging caution at all times in the use of tranquilizers by car drivers.

"Dizziness, sleepiness and, in extreme cases, even fainting spells can result from taking both tranquilizers and anti-histamines," an auto club official said.

The official emphasized that not everyone who takes these drugs becomes an unsafe driver, but there is little doubt that they do reduce the efficiency of some drivers.

According to the auto club, anyone taking tranquilizers, or more than the usual amount of anti-histamines, should consult a doctor before driving a car.

Canada Switches UN Stand

UNITED NATIONS (CP)

South Africa is getting no comfort from Canada in its manifold racial problems at the United Nations General Assembly, where racial issues and nationalism are dominant.

This is a switch for Canada. The assembly's special political committee now is headed into a debate—it started Friday—on race conflict in South Africa resulting from apartheid, and another defeat for the white-supremacy country is certain.

The committee swung into apartheid (racial separation) immediately after walloping South Africa over the way people of Indian and Indo-Pakistan descent are treated there.

The committee voted 71 to 0 with six abstentions to approve a resolution which would have the assembly urge that the South African government enter negotiations with India and Pakistan on the matter. An Indian spokesman said there are 450,000 people of Indian descent in South Africa.

VOTES WITH MAJORITY
With Arthur Smith, member of Parliament from Calgary, casting the ballot, Canada voted with the majority Friday. Last year Canada abstained.

There was a similar switch Thursday when Canada voted in the trusteeship body for a resolution to send a UN committee to Southwest Africa, administered by South Africa under a UN mandate.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's stand at the recent Commonwealth conference in London—when Prime Minister Verwoerd of South Africa announced withdrawal from the Commonwealth—also makes it certain Canada will vote against South Africa on apartheid when it comes to a roll-call, possibly next week.

The United States also has changed its policy on some votes involving racial and colonial issues, but U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson suffered an unexpected rebuff Thursday when he outlined an offer of aid to African countries, with the Africans themselves drawing up the plans.

Dublin-educated Jaja Wachuku, Nigerian minister of economic affairs, complained Stevenson had not offered anything concrete in the way of dollars—a complaint that surprised Western listeners in view of the American's obvious effort to please the Africans.

Honest Man Gets $10,000 From Brinks
LOS ANGELES (AP) — An unemployed handyman who returned $240,000 he found on the street got a cheque for $10,000 this week from the armored car company that had lost the money.

But the man, Douglas William Johnson, turned down a job as a guard with Brinks Incorporated. It paid $90 a week and Johnson—although unemployed—said he feels he can make more working as a maintenance man.

Brinks offered Johnson a job and a college scholarship for his eldest son. Johnson told the company he'd rather have cash to buy a new home. He and his wife and three sons now live in a modest, two-bedroom house which they rent.

Johnson, who usually works hauling trash and washing windows, said his son will be able to work his way through school because a movie studio has offered the lad a summer vacation job.

Court Ruling Monday On Rebrin
OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada will rule Monday on the validity of a deportation order against Irene Rebrin, 34-year-old Slavonic lecturer at the University of British Columbia.

Miss Rebrin appealed to the Supreme Court earlier this month against decisions of the B.C. Supreme and Appeal courts upholding a deportation order made Jan. 22, 1959. The deportation writ said she is a member of a class of persons prohibited entry to Canada as landed immigrants.

Girls Shot in Attack
SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Communist guerrillas blew up a bus carrying girl members of the pro-government Republic Youth Organization and fired at the girls after the bus was overturned, the department of information said today. Fourteen girls were wounded. Two died in hospital.

Blast Rips Tavern
CHICAGO (AP) — An explosion of undetermined origin ripped through a crowded north side tavern Friday night, injuring at least 40 persons, five badly.

$138,500 for 4 Canadians

NO MONEY FOR MEAL, WINS $56,000 IN IRISH

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 60-year-old winner of $56,000 in the Irish Sweepstake did not have enough money today to buy breakfast.

"I was going to see if I could get credit for breakfast," said Harry Puff when told his horse, Merryman II, was second in the Grand National Steeplechase run at Aintree, Eng.

Mr. Puff, who has been on social assistance for nine months, said he will take a "leisurely trip around the world" with his winnings. He said he had to quit his job as a CNR fireman in 1953 when his eyes started to go. Since then he had had odd jobs.

Four Canadians today won $138,500 each as holders of Irish hospital sweepstake tickets on Nicolaus Silver, winner of the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, Eng.

(Only one Victorian, "Pay Day" with ticket RPQ 03051, had a starter in the race and his entry, Floater, fell early and did not finish. Two other Victorians had non-starters, and will win $1,000 each. Three of eight Up-Island ticket holders drew starters, but their horses failed to place.)

Holders of tickets on the first three horses finishing the race won a total of $1,135,700.

Two of the big winners gave addresses in the Toronto area, while the other two listed themselves as from White Rock, B.C., and Alberta. All four used noms de plume.

Eight Canadians held tickets worth $55,400 each on Merryman II, the second-place finisher. Another five, including a Vancouver man with the nom de plume "Sick Man," won $27,700 as holders of tickets on third-place O'Malley Point.

Michael Lazar, 45-year-old father of five, of Lakeview, Ont., said he will split his $138,500 with his children and

Animals Aboard Soviet Spaceship

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union today launched a space vehicle into orbit with a dog and other small creatures aboard and returned it to Soviet soil, Moscow radio reported.

Moscow radio said "preliminary" investigation on the landed space ship-satellite have shown that the condition of the experimental animal is normal.

Moscow radio said the main aim of the launching was to improve designs aimed at insuring "man's vital functions during flights in space and the return to earth."

The broadcast reported that the launching of the new spaceship had produced a "great deal of valuable data."

The launching was a repeat performance of a March 9 sputnik, when a dog was put into orbit and brought back safely. That sputnik weighed 4,700 kilograms (10,360 pounds).

Moscow radio said today's space ship weighed just about the same — 4,695 kilograms (10,329 pounds) — indicating the two may have been similar models.

The dog was named Zvezdochka (Little Star).

A Salmon From the Terrace

LONDON (AP) — The House of Commons was urged Friday to clean up the Thames so that members bored by the chamber's proceedings can step outside and catch a salmon.

The plea came from Sir Tufton Beamish, an unhappy angler and bird lover who represents the parliamentary district of Lewes. He was arguing in favor of a bill to make Thames-side cities quit dumping raw sewage into the famous stream.

Beamish, a Conservative, recalled that up to the 18th century, "Salmon were so common in the Thames that it was often a condition in the indentures of apprentices in London that they should not be made to dine off this fish more than two or three times a week."

Now, he said sadly, the Thames is empty of salmon, and full of noxious substances as can be verified by stepping out on the House of Commons terrace, which overlooks the river. And the price of salmon which now comes mostly from Scotland, runs around 10 shillings ($140) a pound.

Closure Try By Bennett In Hot Debate

By FRANK BUTTER and NORMAN CRIBBENS

A full week of night sittings exploded into a fit of temper in the legislature early today when Premier Bennett tried to invoke closure and Health Minister Eric Martin went home ill.

A series of furious rows erupted in the early morning hours after Mr. Martin refused to give MLAs the report on B.C. mental health services prepared by Dr. Mathew Ross of the American Psychiatric Association.

The rowdy six-hour spate ended at 2:25 a.m. when the premier finally bowed to repeated opposition complaints about passing laws so late.

The House was adjourned until 2 p.m. today, presumably in the hope that a desperate final attack will clear the way for prorogation late today.

The high points:

- The CCF accused Mr. Martin of trying to hide the APA report as they refused to pass his salary vote in estimates until he gave it to them;
- The premier tried unsuccessfully to invoke closure of debate on the estimates;
- Speaker Hugh Shantz warned Gordon Dowding (CCF-Burnaby) he would be named — expelled from the House — if he continued to defy the chair;
- Mr. Martin retired when the premier said the debate was threatening his health;
- Debate on the health estimates and the unfinished portions of Bill 42 were adjourned as the CCF was accused of filibustering.

Emergency Meet Set in Key West

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy is to fly south by jet later today to meet with Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain at Key West, Fla. They will discuss "the serious situation in Laos."

He will meet here Monday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The White House announced that Gromyko had requested a meeting with Kennedy to present a message from his government.

Presumably this, too, deals with the inflammatory situation in Laos, the little kingdom in Southeast Asia which is threatened by pro-Communist rebels.

Macmillan arrived Friday night in Trinidad in the British West Indies to start a 19-day tour of the West Indies, the United States and Canada.

FLYING TONIGHT

Kennedy will fly tonight to Palm Beach, Fla., and on to Key West in the morning.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger read this brief announcement on what may well become a meeting of highest significance:

"The president and Prime Minister Macmillan have agreed to have a brief meeting tomorrow at the Key West naval base. The prime minister's presence in Trinidad makes a meeting easy to arrange and they have agreed that a discussion between them can be very helpful in the light of the serious situation in Laos and the opening on Monday of the SEATO conference."

"In addition, the president is remaining in close touch with President de Gaulle and has this morning dispatched a personal message to President de Gaulle on the situation in Laos."

The meeting with Macmillan is set for 11 a.m. EST (8 a.m. PST) Sunday. Salinger said the meeting with Gromyko will be at noon Monday at the White House.

U.S. Plane Missing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. transport plane with eight Americans aboard is missing in Laos, the government announced today.

The plane was assigned to the U.S. air attaché in Laos, but neither he nor Ambassador Winthrop G. Brown was aboard. The plane has been missing for two days.

Reds Keep Pressure In Battle for Roads

VIENTIANE (Reuters) — Leftist forces today maintained pressure against two important highways linking strongholds of the right wing regime in this embattled Southeast Asian kingdom.

Reports reaching Vientiane indicated rightist troops evacuated the southern town of Kam Keut to an attacking leftist force. The rightists dug in to defend the road linking Vientiane and Savannakhet, a southern town on the Thailand border where rightists launched a drive which took this capital late last year.

In the north, right wing forces were reported to have counter-attacked to defend the road running north from Vientiane to the royal city of Luang Prabang.

BENNETT'S PLANS TO FLEMING

'Either B.C. or Ottawa Handle Columbia Alone'

Premier Bennett said Friday the federal government should accept B.C.'s terms for financing the Columbia River power project — or pay the entire $458,000,000 cost itself.

He told federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming that B.C. would finance the entire undertaking provided Ottawa guaranteed power would be available in Vancouver for not more than 4.25 mills per kilowatt hour.

Otherwise, he proposed, that the federal government pay the full shot, and provide B.C. with compensation for its residents who are flooded out.

Mr. Bennett reported these offers to the legislature Friday afternoon.

He said he will hold talks with Mr. Fleming all weekend, but he agreed with the federal minister's earlier prediction that no firm agreement on financing the project would be reached now.

Mr. Bennett told the legislature his offers, sent to Mr. Fleming Thursday night, before their first meeting here this morning, were not intended to limit their talks.

This is plan Number One.

The federal government to construct three storage dams and transmission lines necessary to carry out terms of the

SHE CAME A-PUFFIN'—SHE'S OUT OF PUFF

Once proud-puffer on Vancouver Island rail lines, shown in heyday on right pulling lumber, No. 2141 is now mere hulk of former self, corroding in damp at CNR waterfront yards. ## PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

By Stuart Keale

In going over some biographical notes on Donald Fleming prior to the Canadian Club meeting Friday, I was intrigued by some of the extra-parliamentary interests and activities of "the Canadian Tom Dewey."

These are the kind of things which tell more about a man than all the sombre statistics of officialdom.

Did you know, for instance, that while still in his teens Donald Fleming breezed through the University of Toronto with the Governor-General's Medal and a host of other scholarships and prizes?

Did you know that, for the past 20 years, he has been president of the Business Men's Noonday Bible Club of Toronto?

Did you know that he is a life-long sports buff?

Perhaps this shouldn't have come as too great a surprise. I first met him in a most unlikely place—the "snake room" of Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Since no smoking is allowed during the NHL games in Toronto, this room is set aside for sports writers and their friends where they can chat about the game between periods, hoist a cup of coffee, and "blow a line."

On the night in question, Canada's finance minister was discussing the merits of Frank Mahovlich with comedians Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster.

Mr. Fleming's athletic pursuits today, the biography noted, are pretty well confined to tennis and "long-distance swimming."

When the appropriate moment presented itself, I mentioned to the minister that the Strait of Juan de Fuca had been conquered by two of his fellow citizens—Marilyn Bell and Cliff Lumsden—and asked him if he would like to have a try.

"Look," the minister grinned, after the meeting, "I'm in deep enough water right now."

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes seemed tickled with the idea, "Would the Times sponsor him?" chuckled His Honor.

There was one aspect of this luncheon which disturbed me greatly: the complete absence of any provincial government member at the head table.

Premier Bennett was invited, accepted, and then withdrew, the morning of the meeting. Ray Williston, who was supposed to introduce Mr. Fleming, also bailed out.

It is all very well for the local government to plead business. To me, it seemed inexcusable social gaffe.

We are, after all, all Canadians, and when an eminent member of the Cabinet comes across the country to do the Government's business it is only fitting that provincial politicians—regardless of party—should turn out to do him honor.

In short, the Secords ought to mind their manners.

RE-ELECTED president of Saanich Fruit Growers' Association recently, Herbert Bickford will be serving his fifth term. Other officers are vice-president T. Dixon Holloway, and directors, T. G. Michell, E. R. Heal, G. McCarthy, G. A. Doney and A. Bean. The association is expecting a better summer this year. Association manager L. F. Dawes said the export of Vancouver Island loganberries to the U.S. is expected to increase by almost 300 per cent. The demand for loganberries is increasing faster than local growers can produce, he said.

TRAFFIC FINES

In Colwood RCMP court Friday: John Nicoll Page, 1245 Walnut, $15 and $3 costs for speeding over 30.

Stewart and Hudson Ltd., Victoria, $15 and $3 costs for operating a truck with insufficient chains securing load.

Fred Borden, 2907 Seaview, $15 for speeding over 30.

Gretchen Jean Hope, 931 Foul Bay, $20 for driving without a licence.

'FATE WORSE THAN DEATH' Can Rail Buffs Save Ol' 2141?

The B.C. Railway Historical Association is trying to raise a little steam to put its drive on the rails to preserve a venerable locomotive.

Old locy 2141, the last steam locomotive to run in B.C., is quietly rusting into oblivion behind the roundhouse in the CNR's Point Ellice yards.

This 25-member association hates to see Vice-president of the organization, David Wilkie, 595 Leaside, said today the CNR will give the association the locomotive if they just get it away.

The problem is to find the money to move the 140-ton monster and decide where to put it.

For scrap, 2141 would be worth close to $3,000.

It's the last one in B.C. that hasn't been either reduced to hunks of metal or put on public display. Alberni, Nanaimo and Courtenay have locomotives on show, as have many prairie cities.

"I'd like to see her in a park or some other suitable location in Victoria," said Mr. Wilkie, absent-mindedly stroking the 50-year-old veteran of the Island lumber haulage, which last saw service in 1958.

Among suggestions was the "triangle" at intersection of the Island Highway and Trans-Canada Highway on Douglas Street, or in a park.

'Sweepers Exercise In Local Waters

The four minesweepers of the RCN Pacific Command's Second Canadian Minesweeping Squadron next week start another in a series of extensive minesweeping exercises planned for this year.

HMC ships Fortune, Miramichi, Cowichan and James Bay will leave Esquimalt harbor at 5:30 a.m. Monday for exercises in waters adjacent to Esquimalt.

Working with them will be the naval auxiliary vessel Clifton, carrying out mine recovery and minefield patrol duties.

The exercise will end on Thursday afternoon.

Noting that minesweepers operating singly or in formations during such exercises have their manoeuvring powers curtailed to a considerable extent, naval authorities have announced to all shipping concerns the following information:

BLACK BALL

During daylight operations, the minesweepers will display a black ball at the foremast head and a black ball on the yardarm on the side (or sides) on which it would be dangerous for other vessels to pass.

Night exercises will see the display of round green lights instead of the black balls, and displayed in a similar manner.

Mariners are advised that minesweepers showing these signals should not be approached nearer than 500 yards on either beam, and in no case should another vessel pass astern the "sweepers" at less than 1,000 yards.

Under no circumstances, it is added, should a ship pass through a formation of minesweepers.

He was stitched up in hospital emergency and discharged.

10,000,000 DAFFODILS TAKE TO AIR

Golden Sea Flows to East

The annual daffodil harvest is going ahead full blast in the lush, balmy fields of Gordon Mead, where hundreds of pickers are sorting fresh blooms on their way to the eastern Canadian market.

Before Good Friday bulb growers in the area expect to have picked 10,000,000 blossoms.

The first shipments have already been dispatched aboard jet aircraft for cities in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, but the bulk of the shipments—to Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal—will leave here Monday and Tuesday.

Geoff Vantreight, one of the biggest bulb flower growers in the area, expects to sell about 7,000,000 daffodil and tulip blossoms before the Easter season is over. One of his biggest buyers is the Canadian Cancer Society which holds "daffodil days" in several eastern cities.

Mr. Vantreight will have 200 pickers, packers, drivers and office staff on duty on a 24-hour basis this weekend.

But the effort will not end in his huge packing sheds and refrigeration plant in Saanich. Four or five Trans-Canada Air Lines planes will be loaded to capacity for "daffodil flights" and many complicated arrangements have to be made to assure prompt deliveries by train, bus or truck.

An early spring and early Easter this year have helped growers. An early spring and a late Easter would have required the bulbs to be kept in cold storage last fall to delay their growing cycle.

An average picker harvests about 1,200 daffodils an hour. They are tied at a rate of about 3,000 an hour, placed in water overnight and put in waste paper-lined cartons of 420 blossoms each for shipment.

'FAIR WAGE POLICY DISREGARDED'

Failure of the Civil Service Commission to recommend wage increases for provincial government employees in the face of the lag behind industry generally is "a disregard of the fair wage policy," E. P. O'Connor, general secretary, B.C. Government Employees' Association, said today.

Government wages are from 5 to 17 per cent behind equivalent rates in similar categories in other occupations, he said.

He was replying to a statement in the legislature by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, who said the only reason civil servants don't get a pay increase is that the Civil Service Commission hadn't recommended one.

"DISTURBING"

Mr. O'Connor termed "disturbing" a statement attributed to Dr. H. M. Morrison, commission chairman, that no increases were recommended because the commission found "no significant" differences between government wages and others.

For example, he said, orderlies and psychiatric aides in government institutions reach a maximum of $286 after five years. In similar positions in general hospitals pay is $324 monthly.

A government truck driver gets $310 a month; average paid by outside employers is $340.

These figures were from surveys taken by the BCGEA which followed the same procedure used by the CCC, the basis of the last two general wage increases, in 1957 and 1959.

"Surveys this year showed every bit as much justification for wage increases as those previously accepted by the government," Mr. O'Connor said.

SAANICH CONSTRUCTION

'Indecision' Could Cost $3 Million

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Saanich council's indecision on rezoning 14 acres of property for light industrial use may result in a loss of $3,000,000 worth of construction in the municipality.

Robert Bentall, vice-president of Dominion Construction Co., said today his company is prepared to spend "several millions of dollars" in a planned light industrial centre south of the Trans-Canada Highway and west of Burnside.

"We would initially spend $3,000,000," he stated.

But he added if the rezoning application is rejected, the company would have no other alternative but to drop its plan to develop an industrial estate in Saanich and go elsewhere—possibly Esquimalt, the city or Nanaimo.

Council has tabled for further consideration the company's application after discussing the matter with the Advisory Planning Commission last week.

COMPLICATION

Complicating the matter is an earlier council decision allowing the B.C. Electric Co. to use a block of land in the area for light industrial use.

The B.C. Electric property adjoins the company's proposed industrial site.

Mr. Bentall said today he can't understand why some councillors are opposed to his company's plan when they have already approved the industrial development project of the B.C. Electric.

The two basic requirements for an industrial estate are suitable ground conditions and easy highway accesses, he said.

LITTLE PLANNING

"It may surprise many people, but Saanich has little to offer for light industrial development," he said. "That's because there was little planning in the past and areas were not set aside for this purpose."

He said the company's proposed development included warehouses and offices.

"Our project would not be unsightly," he said. "The entire area will be landscaped and buildings will be obliged to have set-backs from roads."

MONDAY MEETINGS

Douglas Rotary Club: 6 p.m., Holyrood House. Rev. David Ragg will speak on "Holy Week."

Plaza Theatre Closes Doors End of Month

By PHIL LEE

Victoria has lost another motion picture theatre.

This time it is the Plaza, 808 Yates St. The Odeon-owned house will close down following its Saturday, April 1, operations.

Steve Allen, Plaza manager for the past five years, said almost all the theatre's 17 employees have found new employment. Mr. Allen will remain with the Odeon chain, going to another managerial position, as yet unannounced.

The closing of the Plaza leaves Victoria with only three downtown theatres in operation compared with six only a few years ago. They are the Odeon, the Capitol and the Royal.

Both the Capitol and the Royal are owned by Famous Players of Canada.

Two other Famous Players theatres to be closed within the past few years were the Dominion and the Atlas, both on Yates St.

No reason for the Plaza closing was given. However it is supposed that television, poor pictures and tighter money all contributed.

ANOTHER KOREAN CHILD WINS 'MOTHER' IN CITY

Another Victorian has launched a personal program of international aid—and it only costs $15 a month.

Mrs. Muriel Collier, 2057 Cadboro Bay Road, has become a financial foster parent to six-year-old Lee Jae Sun, thousands of miles away in Korea.

Mrs. Collier is extending a helping hand to orphaned Jae Sun by undertaking to contribute $15 a month for at least one year to her support through the Foster Parents' Plan Inc.

This helps provide her with food, clothing, medical care, education and — very important — translation service so that "foster" mother and "adopted" daughter can correspond.

"We are indeed grateful to Mrs. Collier for giving Jae Sun this wonderful gift of hope and help," G. C. Matthews, FPF executive director, wrote The Times.

"We prayerfully hope that many others who read this will also extend a helping hand to a distressed child."

The non-profit, non-sectarian organization has enabled some 600,000 North Americans to help children in Greece, Italy, South Korea, France, Belgium, Viet Nam and Hong Kong on a personal basis in the past 23 years.

Police said Pollard was charged with common assault of Dorothy Pollard.

The court imposed concurrent sentences of two months each. Pollard was previously convicted for a similar offence.

Cloudy skies and showers were predicted for tonight by weatherman William Mackie, but there will be some partial clearing Sunday.

Cloud will thicken again late Sunday afternoon, and there will be rain again Sunday night or early Monday, he said.

Winds will be southeasterly at 15 to 25 miles per hour overnight, and southwesterly Sunday morning. Temperatures will range between 43 and 55 degrees.

Meeting of the Orange Hall Building Fund Committee will be held in the small hall, Monday evening at 7:30.

JFK, Mac Flying For Laos Parley

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy is to fly south by jet later today to meet with Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain at Key West, Fla. They will discuss "the serious situation in Laos."

He will meet here Monday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The White House announced that Gromyko had requested a meeting with Kennedy to present a message from his government.

Presumably this, too, deals with the inflammatory situation in Laos, the little kingdom in Southeast Asia which is threatened by pro-Communist rebels.

Macmillan arrived Friday night in Trinidad in the British West Indies to start a 19-day tour of the West Indies, the United States and Canada.

FLYING TONIGHT

Kennedy will fly tonight to Palm Beach, Fla., and on to Key West in the morning.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger read this brief announcement on what may well become a meeting of high significance.

The president and Prime Minister Macmillan have agreed to have a brief meeting tomorrow at the Key West naval base. The prime minister's presence in Trinidad makes a meeting easy to arrange and they have agreed that a discussion between them can be very helpful in the light of the serious situation in Laos and the opening on Monday of the SEATO conference.

In addition, the president is remaining in close touch with President de Gaulle and has this morning dispatched a de Gaulle on the situation in Laos.

The meeting with Macmillan is set for 11 a.m. EST (8 a.m. PST) Sunday. Salinger said the meeting with Gromyko will be at noon Monday at the White House.

BANGKOK (AP) — Foreign ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization hurried here today for a crisis conference on Laos.

Western military movements in the area were being kept secret.

Radio Moscow today agreed that the situation grows more serious daily in the jungle kingdom. But the Russians remained silent on Western peace proposals put forward by the British.

Soviet Gets Nehru Note

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India sent a new message to the Soviet Union today following President Kennedy's appeal to Prime Minister Nehru for help to arrange a de Gaulle on the situation in Laos.

The meeting with Macmillan is set for 11 a.m. EST (8 a.m. PST) Sunday. Salinger said the meeting with Gromyko will be at noon Monday at the White House.

FIVE CANADIANS WIN $138,500 IN 'IRISH'

Victorian's Horse Fails

By the Canadian Press

Canadians shared an estimated $2,000,000 today as Irish hospital sweepstakes ticket holders in the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree, England.

Five of them won $138,500 each as holders on the winner, Nicolaus Silver.

(Only one Victorian, "Pay Day" with ticket RPQ 03051, had a starter in the race and his entry, Floater, fell early and did not finish. Two other Victorians had non-starters, and will win $1,100 each. Three of eight Up-Island ticket holders drew starters, but their horses failed to place.)

Two of the big winners are from Western Canada. Peter Trueman of White Rock, B.C., and Mrs. Catharine Porter of Gleichen, Alta. Two others are from the Toronto area.

Mr. Trueman, 48-year-old millhand, described his jackpot as a miracle. The father of five children, ranging from five to 25 years old, used the nom de plume "Dag." He said he was too overcome to discuss spending plans.

Mrs. Porter used the nom de plume "Macushla." She said she had been buying sweeps tickets "about four years" but this time her mother had made the purchase. Gleichen is about 50 miles southeast of Calgary.

TRIP TO PARIS

Michael Lazar, 45, of Lakeview, Ont., said he will split his $138,500 with his five children and perhaps take a long-planned trip to Paris. He won under the nom de plume "Rose."

The other big winner was F. Hay of Scarborough, Ont., who used the nom de plume "Cowfer."

The fifth, Thema McCallum, is serving with the Canadian armed forces in Europe. Eight others won $55,400 on the favorite, Merryman II, which placed second. They include Mrs. Jutta Tambore and Donald Ellis of the Toronto area; Paul Arnold, Kitchener, Ont.; Nicole de Giulio, Windsor, Ont.; Mrs. B. C. Stewart, Welwyn, Sask.; Jean Gabriel, Montreal, and John T. Mires of Welland, Ont.

Closure Try By Bennett In Hot Debate

By FRANK RUTTER and NORMAN CRIBBENS

A full week of night sittings exploded into a fit of temper in the legislature early today when Premier Bennett tried to invoke closure and Health Minister Eric Martin went home ill.

A series of furious rows erupted in the early morning hours after Mr. Martin refused to give MLAs the report on B.C. mental health services prepared by Dr. Mathew Ross of the American Psychiatric Association.

The rowdy six-hour debate ended at 2:25 a.m. when the premier finally bowed to repeated opposition complaints about passing laws so late.

The House was adjourned until 2 p.m. today, presumably in the hope that a desperate fight would be avoided for prorogation late today.

The high points:
● The CCF accused Mr. Martin of trying to hide the APA report as they refused to pass his salary vote in estimates until he gave it to them;
● The premier tried unsuccessfully to invoke closure of debate on the estimates;
● Speaker Hugh Shantz warned Gordon Dowding (CCF-Burnaby) he would be named — expelled from the House — if he continued to defy the chair;

● Mr. Martin retired when the premier said the debate was threatening his health;
● Debate on the health estimates and the unfinished portions of Bill 42 were adjourned as the CCF was accused of filibustering.

It had started as a quiet night after the premier informed Mr. Strachan privately Mr. Martin's health could not stand a rough time.

But Mr. Martin's refusal to

A Salmon From the Terrace

LONDON (AP) — The House of Commons was urged Friday to clean up the Thames so that members bored by the chamber's proceedings can step outside and catch a salmon.

The plea came from Sir Tufton Beamish, an unhappy angler and bird lover who represents the parliamentary district of Lewes. He was arguing in favor of a bill to make Thames-side cities quit dumping raw sewage into the famous stream.

Beamish, a Conservative, recalled that up to the 18th century, "Salmon were so common in the Thames that it was often a condition in the indentures of apprentices in London that they should not be made to dine off this fish more than two or three times a week."

Now, he said sadly, the Thames is empty of salmon and full of noxious substances as can be verified by stepping out on the House of Commons terrace, which overlooks the river. And the price of salmon which now comes mostly from Scotland, runs around 10 shillings ($1.40) a pound.

With a visionary gleam in his eye, the 44-year-old Beamish said:

"What nicer pastime during a lengthy sitting of the chamber than to go to the terrace and hook a large salmon."

SANTA MARIA REBELS SOUGHT BY PORTUGAL

LISBON (Reuters).—Premier Antonio Salazar's government announced Friday night it would seek extradition of the "murderers" of an officer of the Portuguese cruise liner Santa Maria when she was seized in January.

The band of men who took the ship over were granted political asylum in Brazil last month.

An Information Ministry statement named 11 Portuguese, six Spaniards, a Venezuelan and six of unspecified nationality who allegedly took part in the seizure.

The statement said 17-year-old Spanish student Vitor Jose Vela Perez had almost certainly fired the shot which killed Santa Maria third officer Nascimento Costa.

REGINA (CP).—Defence Minister Harkness said Friday night it is the policy of the government that Canadian forces should not be required to face a potential enemy with inferior weapons.

But he added that no decision will be taken on acquisition of nuclear warheads "until a satisfactory agreement on joint control of such warheads" has been worked out with the United States.

"If and when nuclear weapons are acquired by the Canadian forces, these weapons will not be used except as the Canadian government decides and in a manner approved by the Canadian government."

Mr. Harkness said in an address to the United States Institute of Regina.

He said the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile, Honest John artillery rocket and CF-104 low-level jet bomber have a nuclear capability "and they do not achieve their full potential without a nuclear warhead."

Mr. Harkness reiterated that the government has no intention of having nuclear weapons manufactured in Canada or of acquiring any kind of strategic nuclear weapon—such as a long-range missile or heavy bomber.

Mr. Harkness warned the Soviet Union was developing a "stand-off" bomber which would be able to fire nuclear missiles 1,000 miles to hit its target in the next two years.

CANADA SELLS MORE PLANES

TORONTO (CP).—The United States Army has placed an order for 10 more Caribou aircraft, de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., announced Friday.

De Havilland now has sold 74 Caribous to the U.S. The latest order bringing to 34 the number ordered since December—a value of $21,000,000.

Reds Keep Pressure For Roads

VIETNAME (Reuters).—Leftist forces today maintained pressure against two important highways linking strongholds of the right wing regime in this embattled Southeast Asian kingdom.

Reports reaching Vietnamese indicated rightist troops evacuated the southern town of Kam Keut to an attacking leftist force. The rightists dug in to defend the road linking Vietnamese and Savannakhet, a southern town on the Thailand border where rightists launched a drive which took this capital late last year.

In the north, right wing forces were reported to have counter-attacked to defend the road running north from Vietiane to the royal city of Luang Prabang.

'SOME KNOWN AS FRIENDS OF RUSSIANS'

REGINA (CP).—Defence Minister Harkness said today he believes most persons taking part in the bomb movements are doing so to express their fears but "there are some people in these movements who are in it to weaken the will of the people."

He said at a press conference that some of the leaders of the movements also are known as "friends of the Russians."

He retired from this store in 1946, but later opened another store on Cook Street near Beacon Hill Park, and remained in business until 1958.

Mr. Jones was a pioneer member of Fairfield United Church, and later became a member of Metropolitan Church.

Surviving are the widow, Bertha, at home, 2047 Carnarvon; a daughter, Mrs. J. Blackhall, Westview; a son, Allan E. B. Jones, Victoria; eight grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Jack Scott and Mrs. Ethel Harris in Victoria.

$200,000 Galt Fire

GALT, Ont. (CP).—Fire broke out in a downtown business block early today and destroyed five establishments before it was brought under control three hours later. Police Chief Walter Scott estimated loss and damage in excess of $200,000.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI).—The Navy said today the aircraft carrier Yorktown and several destroyers were searching for an object believed to be a submarine in the Pacific about 100 miles northwest of here.

'GOOD CONDITION' Tot Tumbles 15 Feet, Lands in Flower Bed

Baby James Matheson, 20 months, is in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital today after plummeting 15 feet from an open window to a flower bed at 3:30 p.m. Friday.

The tot, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Matheson, 645 Pine, in Victoria West, scrambled from the flower bed and was restored in the family's second floor apartment, crawled onto a chair at the window and fell, apparently attracted by other children playing in the front yard.

He narrowly missed hitting a concrete sidewalk and garden rocks.

Police ambulance took mother and son to hospital at request of the family doctor and the boy, without apparent injury, was kept for observation.

Mrs. Richard McGaw, occupant of the lower apartment, was on her front steps when the child dropped to earth just a few feet away.

"I was shocked. I couldn't believe it," she said.

"I thanked the Lord all the way down there (to hospital)," Mrs. Matheson said.

New Frontier Hits Palm Beach

PALM BEACH—The New Frontier, southern extension, has pushed its borders down to this golden nest by the sea, long the home of the plush, the posh, the upholstered, the platinum-plated pioneer.

A skinny island, about as long as Manhattan, Palm Beach has suddenly discovered that in history's eyes it is bounded on the north by the Kennedy family's winter seat, and on the south by the former training headquarters of one Ingemar Johansson.

Sutton

I'm not so sure how long the former Johansson encampment will remain a place of pilgrimage, but it is certain that the Kennedy villa, owned by the president's father, may one day become a museum of American memories of the Sixties. Certainly Palm Beach gained a sightseeing attraction, in the first quarter of 1961, which will last to infinity.

The Kennedy house sits on the northern end of North County Road facing Monterey St. Unfortunately for sightseers, it is one of a handful of homes sandwiched between the road and the sea, making little of it visible from the road. Just three minutes away, and similarly placed, is the mansion of Earl E. T. Smith, who had been tapped as Kennedy's ambassador to Switzerland until Swiss pressure forced Smith to have his name withdrawn. He was formerly Ambassador to Cuba under Batista.

All that can be seen of the Kennedy house, where the president's father and mother have passed winter months for many years, is the imposing brown front door with its maroon rings and hinges, the Australian pines and the palms entwined with philodendron screening the place from the road.

In this remote winter house the 35th president of the U.S. chose almost all his cabinet members, announcing their appointments to the nation from the front door. The Palm Beach County Club, where Kennedy plays golf, is just down the pike, and his church, St. Edward's, is a mile or so towards the centre of Palm Beach.

Johansson's county seat was spread over two motels far south along this posh preserve, past millions of dollars of winter estates and manicured clubs. Half of his entourage, including his fiancée, Birgit Lundgren, stayed at Seabreeze, the Quality Court Motel owned by Maury Frank.

Johansson trained in a ring built on the motel's roof just over the reception desk and lobby. (His footwork rattled the pictures on the wall showing President Kennedy when he had checked into the Seabreeze on a recent summer when the family house was closed.) Johansson was bedded down at night in the presidential suite of the Holiday Inn owned by Mrs. Frank, a few yards away.

In between the Kennedy's house and the Johansson headquarters, Palm Beach provides an assortment of splendours that have been dazzling customers since 1896 when Henry Flagler sent the first train into the resort. It carried Cornelius Vanderbilt, Harry Payne Whitney and others of the social band that had been spending their summers at Newport.

This winter, 65 years later, Eastern Airlines brought in its first jet, running down from New York in two hours and a half. Its daily run now maintains the essence of the resort, at least in first class where champagne with strawberries is poured, and served with morsels of crabmeat and shrimp, and trays of delicate sandwiches that would hold their own at a Palm Beach garden party.

Eastern's decision to bring jets to Palm Beach was influenced by the results of the election and it commenced service before Christmas. Anticipating considerable traffic between Washington and Palm Beach it laid on prop-jet flights between those two cities the day before the inauguration.

Aside from the presidential presence now and then, Palm Beach can also offer a new high society shopping centre called Royal Poinciana Plaza, where strollers, anesthetized by clouds of orange blossoms from the rows of citrus trees, can stroll among the southern branches of Fifth Avenue's best shops.

At F. A. O. Schwartz, the Tiffany of toys, you can buy a larger-than-life mule (stuffed) for $200. Abercrombie and Fitch, the army and navy store of the haute monde, will sell you a sailboat or a shooting jacket; and Hattie Carnegie is pushing white mink sports coats (at $850) to ward off the chill of the air conditioning. Nobody has to eat the local food since a branch of Schrafft's, the east's temple of the watercress sandwich, has opened here too.

The shopping centre includes a beautiful new theatre and a nightclub called the Celebrity Room; which is decorated with elaborate Venetian chandeliers and ceiling mural depicting world famed celebrities in Roman togas looking down on the customers. Among them are Bing Crosby, Sinatra, Churchill, Eisenhower, and the local boy, JFK. Nobody has painted Johansson's picture on the ceiling as yet, although Patterson did a handy job of engraving it on the floor at Miami.

Specialty Tour For Architects

The idea of the specialty tour continues to grow—this time it is one for architects. Air France is arranging the jet circuit, which will include Berlin, Warsaw, Moscow, Helsinki, Stockholm and Paris. The tour departs New York April 28, and will by-pass the familiar in Europe and cover seldom-seen contemporary styles of architecture.

Leading the group will be Thomas H. Creighton, editor of Progressive Architecture, and sculptor Gwen Lux.
